THOUSANDS PAY ARMSTRONG TRIBUTE

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

TUCSON, Ariz., Nov. 23.—IF SAMUEL JOHNSON'S Rasselas, of the happy valley, should return to earth in search of a valley happier, warmer, more beautiful, more fertile and better for his health, Tucson would be the place for him.

ENCLOSED BY low mountain ranges that keep out north and west winds, warmed by a hot sun all winter, its atmosphere full of life, thanks to an elevation of 2,300 feet, Tucson is ideal for those that want to build up Vitamin D with winter sunlight.

Dr. Leopold Stieglitz and Dr. Schloss, of New York, who know, say this is the place to come, or send your children, for any trouble demanding a warm, dry climate, and especially for sinus trouble. You might write that down in your memory.

THIS IS WRITTEN at the Arizona Inn, which rambles over several acres of land, one of many excellent Tucson hotels.

The Arizona Inn is mentioned especially because it was built and is owned by Mrs. Isabella Greenway, a woman who combines good ideas with a considerable fortune.

Desiring to help disabled soldiers, of whom many came here, Mrs. Greenway established a furniture factory, to give them employment at work not too hard. She discovered it is easy to make furniture, not so easy to sell it.

MRS. GREENWAY, not discouraged, decided to use the furniture, if she could not sell it, and built this Arizona Inn to hold it. Every piece of furniture in the inn is made by a disabled veteran, and all the sewing, on curtains and everything else, is done by the wife of a bedridden soldier.

This does not mean harsh competition for other hotels, for Arizona Inn takes no more than 75 guests, and if you want to come here, you should send word well in advance.

"I am listening to my sister."

It was a beautiful voice that came through the air, nearly 3,000 miles, from New York. Louise Homer was singing.

To travel three days and nights at high speed, and then hear a voice, traveling the same distance in one one-sixtieth of a second, is impressive, even in "our miracle days." Listeners in the back of the hall in which Mme. Homer sang heard her voice AFTER it was heard by her brother, across the continent, because of the difference in speed between electricity and sound.

FROM NEW YORK, it is reported that Gov. Roosevelt, faced by a deficit of $65,000,000 as he prepares his 1932 budget recommendations, is considering a state sales tax on cigarets and tobacco.

That proposition seems a rather dangerous "entering wedge" to this writer, who, as it happens, does not smoke cigarets or any other tobacco, and has never done so.

If the state, needing money, can select any prosperous industry to pay its bills, business and manufacturing will have new worries added to the depression.

IT HAPPENS that the tobacco industry is already taxed by the national government, more heavily than any other, and there should be laws of common business decency to protect industry against duplicate taxation by federal and local authorities.

If a suggestion may be offered humbly, why don't politicians try curbing their own reckless spending of public money, instead of everlastingly inventing new forms of taxation? It was the custom in ancient tyrannies for the ruler to inspect his subjects, select the most prosperous and take away their property, under various excellent pretexts.

That method of Arabian Nights days should not be applied to modern business, and there should be, in the Supreme Court, some remedy against such offhand, light-fingered "absorption" of business funds.

RETURNING TO this happy Arizona valley, one well-contented citizen here is known from the northern tip of Alaska to the southern end of Florida. He is Frank Hitchcock, once Postmaster General, now publisher and owner of the Citizen, Tucson's only evening newspaper. Other publishers will be interested to hear that it is "in the black."

Gen. Hitchcock, who has managed and won Republican campaigns, believes that the next campaign will end in Republican victory.

HE SAYS:

"The people know that this is not a time for experimenting. And while they are not happy about recent events or present conditions, they will not risk throwing overboard the machinery under which the country's greatest prosperity has been established.

"How can they tell what Democrats might do? When one doctor has been setting a broken arm, the patient does not want another to tear off the splints and break it again, merely because he offers to do a better job."

DAVIS' STOCK TRADING UP IN QUIZ

Acquired Shares on Notes, Senate Told; Smith and Raskob Also Mentioned

WASHINGTON, Nov. 23.—(AP.)—The Senate Lobby Committee was told today that Senators Watson and Davis had each made "paper profits" of several thousand dollars on stock in domestic sugar companies acquired on their personal notes without the payment of any cash.

The stock was sold the senators by B. G. Dahlberg, president of the companies, who was active, the testimony showed, in lobbying for a high tariff on sugar.

John Holland, committee investigator, said Watson, the Republican floor leader, had a paper profit of $7,509, and Davis, a cabinet member under the last three presidents, a profit of $8,437.

SMITH, RASKOB

Senator Moses, of New Hampshire; former Gov. Alfred E. Smith, of New York, and John J. Raskob, chairman of the Democratic national committee, were stockholders in the companies, the investi-

Widow Held in Killing Gets Victim's Estate

Mrs. Laverna M. Culbertson, held under bond on a manslaughter charge following the fatal shooting of her husband, Albert L. Culbertson, in the Jefferson drive home, Mt. Lebanon, November 15, receives the household goods and personal estate of her husband, it was made known today when his will was offered for probate.

Insurance, said to approximate $66,000, and royalties from a patent are to be administered in a trust fund, in which a life interest is set up for the wife. Maintenance and education of the children are stipulated, and at the death of Mrs. Culbertson the estate is to go to the children.

Mrs. Culbertson, accompanied by her father-in-law and Attorney O. K. Eaton, appeared in the office of Register of Wills Joseph N. Mackrell this morning to probate the will, which names Mrs. Culbertson and the Union Trust Company executors. It was executed February 1, 1929.

FAMILY OF FIVE FOUND DEAD IN MYSTERY

Cause of Tragedy Killing Teacher, Wife and Three Children Puzzles Police

BOSTON, Nov. 23.—(AP.)—Mr. and Mrs. William F. Goodale and their three young children were found dead today in their Dorcester home. Neighbors had not seen any of the Goodales since last Friday.

Police, puzzled, investigated the theory that their deaths were accidental, caused by gas or the exhaustion of oxygen in the house.

BODIES IN BATHROOM

The bodies of Goodale, who was a teacher at the Boston Latin School, and his wife, a former Worcester school teacher, were found in the bathroom of the house. There was a gas hot water heater in the bathroom.

Two of the children, Mary, aged 1½ years, and Anna, 4, were found in their beds. The other child, William, aged 3 months, was in his carriage.

Discovery of the bodies was made after a neighbor, who had noticed that the curtains had been drawn since Friday, called police to investigate. When the officers

VAST THRONG FILES BY BIER

Funeral Services Delayed To Permit Crowds to View Body at Courthouse

A record throng paid a last tribute today to County Commissioner Joseph G. Armstrong, who rose from a glass-blower to the highest political offices of both city and county.

Thousands, at the rate of 70 a minute, filed past his bier as his body lay in state in the rotunda of the Courthouse two lines at times, extending four abreast, for three blocks.

CROWD OUTSIDE

A vast crowd outside the building late today heard the last rites through amplifiers. Within the corridors, another assemblage of officials, of nation, state, county and city, with members of family, listened to the farewell eulogy.

So great was the crowd that the time for the services, originally set for 2 o'clock, was delayed an hour to permit the never-ceasing procession to pass the casket.

Scores of police in dress uniform were stationed in the vicinity of the Courthouse to handle the crowds and traffic.

BABCOCK TRIBUTE

E. V. Babcock, colleague of the late commissioner, was the first to pass the bier. He halted momentarily to place a large bouquet of orchids beside the body of his friend and political associate of many years.

Later, standing on the Courthouse steps and viewing the throng that had gathered, Babcock exclaimed:

A police escort was required to enable Mrs. Babcock to reach the interior of the Courthouse.

His daughter, Dorothy Babcock, placed another bouquet of the same flowers. These two, of the hundreds of floral tributes, will be the only ones to accompany the body to its last resting place. The rest will be sent to the hospitals after the services.

Many laborers were seen in the long line that paid respect to the one-time South Side glassworker.

United States Senator David A. Reed, unrecognized in the throng, waited in line for half an hour before he reached the bier. A moment later County Commissioner C. C. McGovern saw him and took him into his office.

Neil Carrick, 74, of Hazelwood, former South Sider and an old county employe, rested on the Courthouse steps after viewing the body of his friend, "Joe." He said:

"I've known 'Joe' since he was a little boy. I went in to pay

SLAIN IN HOLDUP OF TEAROOM

BLADENSBURG, Md., Nov. 23.—(INS.)—An unidentified man was killed and five men and one woman were wounded early today when five men held up a teahouse.

Seven women and 14 men, arrested at the resort for questioning, said they did not know the dead man and believed he was one of the bandits. They said all the shooting was done by the gangsters. Charles Levitt, the alleged proprietor, had given the intruders $350, but they said that wasn't enough and started to shoot.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 23.—(AP.)—Two men were arrested here today in connection with the hold-up of a tea room near Washington early today in which one man was killed and five persons injured. They gave their names as Nicholas Tronco and Ciscerto Renzulli.

POWERS VICTOR IN LEGAL CLASH

CLARKSBURG, W. Va., Nov. 23.—(INS.)—Counsel for Harry F. Powers, alleged "Bluebeard" slayer of five persons, today won the first of a series of legal skirmishes preceding Powers' trial for murder when Judge John C. Southern granted J. Edgar Law, Powers' attorney, permission to examine 32 Harrison County residents who submitted affidavits stating Powers could receive a fair trial in the county.

They will be examined at 11 o'clock Wednesday. The affidavits were submitted Saturday during a hearing on Law's plea for a change of venue.

Still the bland, unmoved spectator, Powers made a brief appearance in court today. He was cleanly shaven and neatly dressed, but wore no collar.

Chicken Bone Perils Lya De Putti's Life

Emergency Operation Follows Blood Poisoning

NEW YORK, Nov. 23.—(AP.)—Lya de Putti, Hungarian stage and screen actress, was reported to be in a critical condition at a hospital today following an emergency operation for blood poisoning.

A chicken bone, which lodged in her throat, was removed last week without an operation. Physicians said then that Miss de Putti would probably suffer no serious effects.

Her temperature rose rapidly yesterday, however, and five specialists decided an operation was necessary. The operation was performed last night.

The actress' condition early today was reported improved, although it did not warrant the statement that she was out of danger, doctors said.

It is Miss de Putti's second experience with blood poisoning within the year. Starting a world cruise last summer, the actress burned a finger, and had to stop at Havana for medical treatment.

The petite, bobbed hair star has not been conspicuous in the talking pictures. She once was quoted as saying that no actress with a trace of accent could hope for talking picture success in Hollywood.

Heiress Arrested On Traffic Charge

CHICAGO, Nov. 23.—(INS.)—The wealthy heiress of a South African diamond merchant today faced charges of reckless driving and leaving the scene of an accident after a collision between her sedan and the automobile of a Chicago police captain.

Miss Tillie Becker, 28, told police that she had inherited $750,000 from her grandfather, Joseph Henriche. Capt. John P. Ryan testified that she ran into his machine and refused to stop.

Mary Lewis Sued For 45 Days' Rent

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 23.—(AP.)—Suit for $375, said to represent 45 days' rent on a Beverly Hills home, has been filed here against Mary Lewis, opera singer, and her husband, B. R. Hague. The suit was brought by Harvey G. Pearson, owner of the home.

30-YEAR HEAT RECORD BROKEN

Another November heat record, one that has stood for 30 years, was broken today as a bright sun dispelled one of the heaviest fogs of the year.

Back in 1900 the high temperature record for this date—71—was established. At 2 o'clock the mercury had reached 72 and the 30-year record was supplanted by a new figure.

So thick was the atmosphere this morning that street cars carrying workers to their offices were delayed, and motorists proceeded slowly through the haze to avoid crashes.

An indication that the fog was confined to the Pittsburgh district was furnished by railroad trains, which arrived on scheduled time.

Plows Battle Drifts To Save Train in Snow

DURANGO, Col., Nov. 23.—(INS.)—Eleven passengers on a Denver and Rio Grande Western narrow gauge train were marooned today near Chama, N. M., 60 miles east of here. The train has been blocked by huge snowdrifts for more than 12 hours.

Snowplows were rushed from Chama and Alamosa, Col., with food supplies and will attempt to push through the drifts, piled five to seven feet high, to rescue the passengers and train crew.

Heavy snow was falling all over southern and southwestern Colorado this morning.

Doak Back at Desk, Recovers From Cold

WASHINGTON, Nov. 23.—(AP.)—Secretary Doak has recovered from a severe cold that kept him in bed for several days and was back at his desk today after a call on President Hoover.

ESTATE SMALL, FRIENDS THINK

A search for the will of Commissioner Joseph G. Armstrong had proved futile today as the impression of friends that he had died a poor man after a political career of 40 years was being discussed.

After a careful check of the veteran political leader's effects in his home and office, members of his family and co-workers were convinced that Armstrong had died without leaving such a document.

The only property known to be in his name is the unpretentious Armstrong home at 919 Carson street. His salary as chairman of the Board of County Commissioners was $15,000, but, slated for retirement January 1, he confided to friends, they say, just before he took sick that, unless he obtained a new position, he would be forced to cut down his expenses.

Boats Bring Fowl For Holiday Feasts

Thousands of turkeys, ducks, geese, chickens and "fixins" arrived in Pittsburgh today from lower Ohio River points to grace Thanksgiving Day tables. Their decks piled high with crates of fowl, the packets Liberty and Senator Cordill docked at the Smithfield Street wharf shortly before noon. The boats were met by scores of eager buyers.

Carol Raves as Cabinet Forces Nicholas Truce

VIENNA, Nov. 23.—(AP.)—Pressure from his cabinet and an official warning that stern measures would not be popular with the Rumanian people have forced King Carol to give up his intent to force an annulment of the marriage of his brother, Prince Nicholas, and Mme. Jana Lucia Deletj, according to dispatches from Bucharest received here.

Carol, it was said, will merely order that they refrain from appearing together in public. He stormed and fumed, the report said, when the ministers took sides against him, but finally accepted their counsel. They warned him that any attempt to coerce Prince Nicholas, who played a considerable part in bringing about his restoration, would create a bad impression on the Rumanian people.

The wedding of the prince and the pretty girl commoner caused a storm scene at the palace when Carol tore up the marriage certificate in his brother's presence only to be informed that the prince had photostatic copies. Hot words passed between the two and Carol was reminded of his own affair with Mme. Magda Lupescu, on account of which he was an exile from Rumania for several years.

Turkey and Spuds Arrive For Hoover Thanksgiving

WASHINGTON, Nov. 23.—(INS.)—President Hoover's Thanksgiving dinner was assured today when he received a 30-pound turkey from the Berkeley County Turkey Growers' Association of West Virginia, and 40 bushels of Maine potatoes.

Mrs. E. C. Taft brought the bird to the White House, where Secretary Lawrence Richey formally received it in behalf of the President.

A short time later a two-wheeled cart, drawn by a team of Hereford oxen, wheeled into the White House grounds with the potatoes.

A large crowd attempted to follow the ox cart into the south grounds after police opened the gates—without success.

President Hoover appeared as soon as the team was brought to a halt by Lemville Hawkes, of Cumberland Center, Me., the driver, clad in denims. Mr. Hoover advanced and patted one of the oxen and then turned to Frank P. Washburn, Maine commissioner of agriculture, who presented the tubers in behalf of Gov. William T. Gardiner, and said:

"I thank you very much. I am sure we will have enough potatoes to last us all winter."

DRY WARFARE FLARES ON EVE OF CONGRESS

Prohibition Backers, 'Antis' Renew Activities; Fight On Referendum Certain

By GEORGE E. HOLMES
International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 23.—The storm of controversy raging about prohibition gathered force today with the convening of Congress only two weeks away.

Return of the legislators to the capital apparently inspired both sides to renewed activity along the various fronts.

Outstanding in the week-end developments were:

1—John J. Raskob, chairman of the Democratic national committee, sent a questionnaire to all of the 88,580 persons who contributed to the Democratic campaign fund in 1928, seeking yes or no answers to seven questions dealing with the Democratic attitude on prohibition for 1932.

2—The W. C. T. U. announced a vigorous campaign of opposition to resubmission of the eighteenth amendment to the people. The W. C. T. U. will hold a national conference here next week upon the eve of Congress' convening.

3—A group of Southern dry Democratic women challenged Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt to amplify his position on prohibition by stating what he proposed to substitute for the eighteenth amendment if it is repealed.

The Raskob questionnaire threatens to cause considerable furore in Democratic ranks. Acting apparently on the theory that those who foot the party bills should at least be given an opportunity to state their views, Chairman Raskob specifically asked:

Whether the contributors favored a definite platform declaration on prohibition, whether they wished the platform to commit the congressional Democrats to a resolution which would get the eighteenth amendment again before the people, whether they favored the home rule plan or straight-out repeal and whether they desired that all future amendments to the Constitution be submitted to popular conventions rather than the state Legislatures.

In his accompanying letter, Chairman Raskob stressed the fact that 10 out of 11 members of the Wickersham Commission recommended repeal or revision of the Eighteenth Amendment. He also observed that since the report was published last January "there has been no material improvement in the enforcement of prohibition."

JAPANESE WAR PLANES BOMB RAILROAD

By JOHN GOETTE
International News Service.

PEIPING, Nov. 23.—Japanese military activity north of Chinchow, with an attack in prospect upon the South Manchurian army of Marshal Chang Hsueh-Liang, was reported today by Chinese military headquarters here.

A communique said that Gen. Suzuki's mixed brigade, recently arrived at Mukden from Japan, was proceeding to Hsinminfu and that other Japanese troops were reconcentering in that vicinity.

Telegrams from Hsinminfu said rifle fire was audible there, and a train on the Peiping-Mukden Railway had been bombed by one of four Japanese airplanes.

Marshal Chang Hsueh-Liang issued a statement declaring he had only 7,500 troops in the Chinchow area under the command of Gen. Yung-Cheng, and charged Japanese intimations of large Chinese troop concentrations in that area were pretexts for an assault on Chinchow.

MAH ESTABLISHES BASE

MUKDEN, Nov. 23.—(INS)—Gen. Mah Chan-Shan, Heilungkiang province governor, whose troops were routed by the Japanese in the battle of the Nonni River, has established his government at Hailun, 120 miles north of Harbin, according to advices received here today.

Three Small Powers Back China at Parley

QUAI D'ORSAY, Paris, Nov. 23.—(INS)—The smaller powers represented on the League of Nations council unexpectedly came to the aid of China today and won an important point for that nation in the negotiations preceding appointment of a neutral commission to inquire into the Manchurian situation.

During a secret session of the council, International News Service learned, the delegates of Spain, Poland and Jugoslavia entered emphatic objections to the draft prepared by Foreign Minister Aristide Briand of France setting forth duties of the proposed commission.

They objected to the draft on two grounds. First, they charged, it united the commission with continued occupation of Manchuria by Japanese troops, and, second, it made no provision for representation of the smaller powers on the investigating body.

China Names Dr. Koo As Foreign Minister

NANKING, Nov. 23.—(AP)—Dr. Vi-Kyuin Wellington Koo, former premier of China, was appointed minister of foreign affairs today. Dr. Koo is a graduate of Columbia University, New York, and a former minister to Washington and London.

The officers reported that indications were that Mrs. Goodale was about to take a bath when she was overcome and that her husband had tried to assist her when he too was overcome. The bathroom door was locked. The children apparently had been put to bed and died in their sleep.

MYSTERY PHONE CALLS

Medical Examiner Timothy J. Leary in a preliminary report said he believed all five had been dead since Friday.

While police searched for clues regarding the cause of the deaths, repeated telephone calls from a woman who refused to disclose her identity were received at the home. Police tried to trace the calls.

Neighbors said they believed the Goodales had gone to Worcester, where Mrs. Goodale's parents reside, for Thanksgiving week.

When police attempts to enter the bathroom of the house were unsuccessful, the fire department was called to assist. Police said they saw bloodstains.

At the Latin School, officials said Goodale was a valued member of the faculty. A messenger sent to his home Friday to inquire about his absence was unable to arouse anyone.

RAIL WAGE CUT PLAN REJECTED

NEW YORK, Nov. 23.—(AP)—The railroads and the railroad workers, after four days discussion of a proposed 10 per cent wage cut, were right back today where they started.

The union railroaders, through their spokesman, D. B. Robertson, chairman of the Railway Labor Executives' Association, informed the railroad presidents yesterday that they did not consider the pay cut necessary.

Daniel Willard, president of the Baltimore and Ohio, and chairman of the special committee of railroad presidents, insisted at the end of the discussions that nothing had been produced to change their opinion that a pay reduction was "imperative."

BANK PAYMENT PLAN SPEEDED

Steps toward the completion of legal formalities necessary to start liquidation of the Bank of Pittsburgh, N. A., by the First National Bank, will be speeded this week to start payment of $14,000,000 to depositors of the closed institution by December 10.

New accounts for 17,000 depositors will be opened in the First National Bank, according to the liquidating plan reached following a series of conferences between officials of the First National Bank, the receiver for the bank of Pittsburgh, N. A., and representatives of the Comptroller of the Currency.

According to C. O. Thomas, receiver for the Bank of Pittsburgh, "quick assets," which include cash and stocks, bonds and securities having a ready market value, amounting to $13,567,737.84 will be turned over to the First National. The Bank of Pittsburgh's known net liabilities, exclusive of preferred and secured claims, Thomas said, are $27,135,475.68.

Weather Conditions.

High pressure is centered over the Middle Atlantic states this morning and covers the country east of the Mississippi and another high overlies the Far Northwest. The two highs are separated by a trough of low pressure, centered over Southern Texas and extending to Canada. The skies are clear over the country east of the Mississippi Valley, but there is considerable ground fog over the mountains and eastward in the coast. Over the plains states and the Rocky Mountain it is either raining or snowing. There was a moderated heavy fall of snow over the Rocky Mountain states.

The weather continues mild over the eastern half of the country and cold over the western half. There is no indication of a change to colder over this section for the next few days, and the tendency over the West is towards slowly rising temperatures.

ALLIES SPLIT ON DEBTS

WASHINGTON, Nov. 23.—(INS.)—Appointment of the Bank of International Settlements at Basle, Switzerland, of a commission of bankers to reopen the question of Germany's "capacity to pay" its reparations obligations, in the opinion of authorities here will see a new allied alignment.

In the past, when the Dawes and Young plans were under consideration, Germany faced a united allied front on the question of the priority of war claims. Great Britain, France, Italy and the United States were in agreement that reparations payments had first call on the German treasury.

Now, international experts declare, Great Britain, Italy and the United States are in disagreement with France over this view. English and American bankers with a billion and a half in short term credits in Germany, authorities say, are demanding these private loans be given priority.

France, on the other hand, with no loans at stake, is demanding reparations continue to hold first place.

Woman Official Loses License Over Auto Death

HARRISBURG, Nov. 23.—The Bureau of Motor Vehicles announced today it had suspended the driver's license of Miss Charlott E. Carr, Deputy Secretary of Labor and Industry, for reckless driving. The action followed investigation and hearing on the death of Daniel E. Peters, October 14, near Campbellstown, Lebanon County.

Peters died after his machine was demolished by a state-owned car driven by the Deputy Secretary. Miss Carr was on her way to Philadelphia at the time of the accident.

A Dauphin County coroner's jury recommended her license be revoked and that she be prosecuted for manslaughter. Prosecution was started in Lebanon County. Miss Carr has posted $1,000 bond pending action of the grand jury.

On November 9, at a hearing before Walter W. Matthews, Deputy Commissioner of Motor Vehicles, photographs were produced showing Miss Carr's machine on the wrong side of the road at the time of the accident. Other witnesses testified she was driving at high speed.

Jury Art Prizes Scored, Popular Award Praised

The International Art Exhibition is "a wonderful thing" but its awarding of prizes should be discontinued, Murdock Pemberton, art critic of the New Yorker, sophisticated weekly, said today as he arrived to give the last of a series of talks in Carnegie Lecture Hall tonight on the paintings now hanging in the thirtieth exhibition.

Elaborating, he asked:

"Why should an artist gain fame and an international reputation overnight? Isn't his work just as good the day before he is given the prize as the day after?"

The International as an idea, Pemberton said, is excellent for art knows no geographical borders.

WOMAN ESCAPES AS RUNAWAY TRUCK CRASHES INTO HOME

QUIT WRECKED ROOM BEFORE SMASHUP

Driver Losing Control of Van on Arlington Avenue Hill, Helper Both Unhurt

Because she went outside to get a bucket of water, Mrs. Mary M. Burns, 57, of 315 Arlington avenue, escaped injury this morning when a five-ton truck ran away on a steep grade in Arlington avenue and crashed into the room where she had been working.

The truck, belonging to the Y. E. P. Express Company, of Youngstown, O., was driven by Everett Anick, 23, of Erie. Neither Anick or his helper, Joseph Sumner, 24, of 2605 Taylor street, Youngstown, was hurt.

Mrs. Burns, who is employed at the Y. W. C. A., Chatham street, said:

"For years, I have been afraid some day this would happen. I have remained awake nights listening to the rumble of cars going past. If I hadn't gone out for the water, I would have been killed."

Anick declared he applied his brakes several times coming down the steep hill. He said:

"The last time I applied them, the truck shot forward. I had no control. A man who saw me coming said my steering knuckle must have broken, because one wheel went one way and the other another."

STORM WRECKS OHIO BALLOON

CLEVELAND, Nov. 23.—(AP.)—Briefly mentioning an all-night struggle in a balloon against a terrific blizzard, the suffering of injuries when it was wrecked, and a subsequent 48 hours of hardship, George Vanik, 25, missing Cleveland balloonist, today reported he is safe at Dean Lake, Ontario.

Vanik had not been heard from since he ascended at Cleveland at 8:30 p. m. Thursday in a 35,000-cubic foot balloon in the face of an approaching storm. The word of his arrival at Dean Lake was contained in a telegram to his mother, Mrs. Jennie Vanik, and ended long hours of suspense for her.

The telegram said the balloon was wrecked near Saulte Ste. Marie, Canada, Friday morning, and that Vanik received a wrenched leg and bruised shoulder in the landing. Suffering from his injuries, he was lost for the next two days and nights, but the message said he is "All O. K. now."

Vanik had been aloft only a short time when the heavy wind and rain storm struck. The frail craft evidently was violently blown out over Lake Erie, and thence north-westward in Canada.

The balloonist had expected to descend within a few hours and when no word was heard from him, his friends began to fear for his life.

TANKER RAIDED AS RUM SHIP

NEW YORK, Nov. 23.—(INS.)—Just before dawn this morning, a massed force of more than 100 dry agents converged by land and sea upon the Raritan Sun, an oil tanker owned by the Sun Oil Company, lying at her dock at Court street, Brooklyn, and took 52 prisoners and a $300,000 rum cargo.

The spectacular raid was the culmination of weeks of spying by undercover men who "turned up" the Raritan Sun as a rum carrier after a fueding gangster who lost his pretty show-girl sweetheart to a rival mobster, "squealed."

The rum runners fired a half dozen half-hearted shots. The raiders answered with quick fire into the air and the rum runners made a mad dash for the water.

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla., Nov. 23.—(INS.)—Simon J. Peabody, 80-year-old lumber magnate, of Columbia, Ind., was defeated here at golf by John D. Rockefeller, who is 93. Rockefeller chuckled over the chagrin of his friend, who told him:

"You're older than I am—no wonder you beat me."

Armstrong Paid Last Tribute

my respects and as I watched the crowd coming and going I got a little dizzy. I'll be all right. My but 'Joe' had a lot of friends."

Members of Council met and adjourned out of respect to former Mayor Armstrong. Then with Mayor Kline, members of his cabinet, city and county officials, they proceeded in a body from the City-County Building to the Courthouse, where they filed past the bier.

COURTHOUSE THRONGED

These who thronged the courthouse entered through the two Grant street entrances, ascended the broad stone staircase, past the bier and through the corridor to the exit at the Ross street end of the building.

Corridors were banked with palms, autumn leaves and flowers. A great floral piece, sent by county officials, representing the seal of Allegheny county, occupied the marble ledge of one of the Grant street windows.

A guard of honor of eight police lieutenants in dress uniform was stationed near the bier. Outside 50 policemen diverted traffic from the courthouse zone.

Hundreds of school children gathered around the modest Armstrong home at 919 Carson street when the bronze casket, silver plated, was removed to the hearse for its journey to the courthouse.

With a vanguard and rear guard of motorcycle patrolmen, the hearse proceeded over the Smithfield Street Bridge, down Water street to Grant street, to the courthouse.

LONG LINE

Spectators estimated that 40 persons a minute were passing Commissioner Armstrong's body as it lay in state.

On the mezzanine floor, behind a screen of ferns and palms, members of the Armstrong family will listen to the funeral services.

Standing only a few steps from the office where Commissioner Armstrong held sway as the political dictator of Allegheny County, the Rev. Dr. Carl A. Voss, of the German Evangelical Protestant Church, conducted simple rites, assisted by the Rev. Charles M. Miller, retired, former pastor of the Bingham Street Methodist Episcopal Church.

There was scripture reading, prayer and a brief eulogy. The Masonic Quartet sang "Lead Kindly Light," "Abide With Me" and "Nearer My God to Thee."

After the services the cortege was to move to the South Side Cemetery by way of Fifth avenue, Sixth avenue, Liberty Bridge, Liberty tubes and Saw Mill Run boulevard.

The Commissioner was to be buried in the same plot where are buried his first wife, his parents, two brothers and a sister.

SERVICES HELD IN HOME

Services were held in the Armstrong home yesterday by the Masonic bodies of which Mr. Armstrong was a member and by the Elks.

Supt. of Police Peter P. Walsh detailed the following as active pallbearers: Lieuts. George Schmotzer and Bernard McArdle; Sergts. Andrew Pietrzak and Frank Hein; Patrolmen Harry C. Hyer and John B. Fogarty.

All day yesterday and far into the night long lines of people passed into the Armstrong home to view the body of the man whose name probably is better known than any other in Pittsburgh. The home was closed early today.

ESTEP'S TRIBUTE

Tribute to the late Commissioner was paid last night by Congressman Harry A. Estep. He said:

"Mr. Armstrong was a very dear friend of mine. His death comes as a great shock. He, however, led a busy life at his age; perhaps he was too tired to go on. He will be missed by the people generally, but especially by those whom he had befriended and helped along the pathway of life—and there are thousands of them.

"He was a man who did things, and as one looks over Pittsburgh and Allegheny County, viewing the things he built, not only for now but for the future, we can all, as citizens, say 'Well done, thou faithful servant—your work is your monument.'"

3 HELD IN GANG RAID ON OFFICE OF SULLIVAN

Bricks Hurled Into Windows; Alderman Charges Gunmen Scare Off Only Witness

Night raiders early today smashed two large plate glass windows and a door pane in the office of Alderman Luke Sullivan, 2816 Penn avenue, and three windows in two adjacent stores.

Seven men were arrested, three accused as the brick tossers, three others, their friends, found in an alleged speakeasy near where the first three men were apprehended, and the seventh, proprietor of one of the damaged stores where police reported finding liquor and wine in his establishment.

3 HELD AT HEARING

The three accused of throwing the bricks were held for a further hearing after arraignment before Police Magistrate James J. O'Connor today on suspicious person charges.

They are Charles Martin, 28, of 3421 Liberty avenue, and Ben, 25, and Joseph Manuel, 26, brothers, of 2525 Mulberry way, Sullivan said.

"These men are known gunmen. They wouldn't hesitate to kill and it's not safe for society to let them run around the streets.

"Everybody knows why the witness isn't here. These three men intimidated him and he was afraid to come.

REPRISAL FOR RAIDS

Police said the brick throwing was in reprisal for raids made by Luke Hannan, Sullivan's constable, on speakeasies operated by members of an opposing political faction.

Hannan, backed by Alderman Sullivan and his brother, Congressman P. J. Sullivan, defeated Edward J. Atkinson, Coyne-O'Malley candidate, in a bitter election November 4.

Friends of the Coyne-O'Malley faction said the three were former Sullivan adherents.

The three men arrested in the purported speakeasy—Joseph Schruff, 36, of 2523 Penn avenue, held as the proprietor of a disorderly house, and Mike Tracey, 46, of the same address, and Frank Chester, 22, of 2924 Penn avenue—were fined $10 each.

The two stores where windows were broken were those of Joseph Vive, 2941 Penn avenue, and Charles Jarowski, of 2925 Penn avenue.

KNIFE RELIEVES HICCOUGHS AS 'CURES' FAIL

6,000 Remedies Suggested To Ohio Man; Champagne, 'Left Hook' Among Ideas

MANSFIELD, O., Nov. 23.—(AP.)—Ira A. King has finally stopped hiccoughing, at least temporarily, it was reported at General Hospital today.

King's gall bladder was removed yesterday and his two-week-old siege of hiccoughing ended, attendants said. It was hoped a permanent cure had been effected.

Physicians decided upon an operation after every medical remedy had been exhausted without bringing King, a 56-year-old garage owner any relief for 14 days.

More than 6,000 letters, telegrams and telephone messages were received from over the nation. Some of the remedies included:

And from Hollywood, Cal.:

"Knock him unconscious with a left hook; when he rallies, the hiccough will be gone. If I'm wrong, I'll take the right one."

KITTANNING, Pa., Nov. 23.—Walter Bovard, 53, of Ford City, today had recovered from a five-day attack of hiccoughing which started last Monday night, according to hospital officials here.

5,000 WELCOME GRANDI TO N. Y.

NEW YORK, Nov. 23.—(AP.)—Foreign Minister Dino Grandi, of Italy, and Signora Grandi arrived by train at 12:32 p. m. for a five-day visit in New York before returning to Italy.

About 5,000 persons had gathered outside the Pennsylvania Station when the special train bearing the Grandis pulled in. The station was guarded by 150 uniformed police and plainclothesmen, assisted by 25 state railway police.

There were no indications that there might be any demonstrations against the Italian foreign minister, who was hanged and burned in effigy at an anti-Fascist meeting in Union Square yesterday.

Turkey to Display Columbus' Sea Map

ISTANBUL, Nov. 23.—(AP.)—The map on which Christopher Columbus traced his third voyage to America is about to be disclosed to the world by permission of the Turkish government after being secreted in the Janissary Museum in Istanbul for four centuries.

The document fell into Turkish hands when Admiral Kemal Reis, who dominated the Mediterranean in the Sixteenth century, captured a Spanish sailor who participated in Columbus' third voyage and had the map in his pocket. It found its way to the Turkish museum, where its value was unsuspected until a German savant discovered it in 1929.

Russia Cuts Output Of Manganese Ore

WASHINGTON, Nov. 23.—(AP.)—Soviet Russia has reduced its manganese ore output 40 per cent this year, according to a report from Landreth M. Harrison, third secretary of the United States legation at Riga, Latvia, made public today.

About a year ago there was a considerable stir in the United States over manganese imports from Russia. The Treasury held extensive hearings on putting on an anti-dumping duty. The United States has been the principal purchaser of this ore.

4 MEN, HORSES DIE IN WRECK

LEXINGTON, Mo., Nov. 23.—(AP.)—Derailment of a speeding special train has carried death to possibly seven men and at least a dozen members of an equine aristocracy known throughout the show rings of the nation.

The 50-car "million dollar" train, hurrying horses and other animals from the American Royal Livestock Show at Kansas City to the International Livestock Exposition in Chicago, piled up on the Missouri Pacific track near Lexington late yesterday.

Officials blamed a spreading rail on a roadbed weakened by recent rains. Four bodies were removed from the wreckage of the 24 cars that left the track. Missouri Pacific officials said three men were not accounted for.

R. A. Davis, an assistant undertaker, said early today the cars probably contained 15 dead horses.

BENEFIT SHOWS PACK COUNTY'S THEATERS

75,000 Attend Performances For Job Aid Fund; Receipts Declared to Be $20,000

Capacity crowds visited Pittsburgh's movie palaces last night, thousands paying to witness benefit performances to raise funds for Allegheny County's unemployed. Between 75,000 and 80,000 persons attended shows in more than 70 theaters in the county. It was believed about $20,000 was realized.

With reports from 33 theaters made to General Chairman John Harris, $12,387.90 was recorded. The theaters reporting included the large downtown houses, which were filled to capacity.

HARRIS PLEASED

Harris, Warner Brothers executive in charge of the benefit shows, early today declared the benefits a huge success. He said the returns were cut somewhat because Wilkinsburg and McKeesport held midnight shows Friday night instead of Sunday night shows.

Harris pointed out that while the admission price at the downtown theaters was 50 cents, some of the smaller houses charged only 25 cents.

The performances were given by the Motion Picture Exhibitors of Allegheny County, and sponsored by the Post-Gazette, the Press and the Sun-Telegraph. The shows staged without charge, represented the motion picture industry's answer to the nation-wide campaign of President Hoover and the Gifford committee.

VOICES THANKS

Harris commented today:

"I am indeed happy over the success of these benefit performances. Most of the theaters showed to capacity audiences. Theaters always have been ready at a moment's notice to come to the aid of a worthy charity.

"I want to take this opportunity of thanking the three newspapers for their sponsorship and also the management of Loew's Penn, R. K. O. Sheridan and Shea's Fulton and all owners of independent theaters who co-operated. I also express our gratitude to all union crafts including the stage hands, motion picture operators and musicians as well as all other employes of the theaters who contributed their services."

Dissatisfaction was expressed at several of the downtown theaters by persons who bought tickets early in the week with the understanding that the houses' seating capacity would not be oversold, and found on arriving for the shows that they would either have to stand or go home. Those who made complaints and demanded their money back were told at the Penn that the theater could make no refunds.

HALT BENEFIT AS 'RACKET'

The benefit motion picture show which was to be held in Oakmont last night as a means of raising funds for the unemployed, was called off at a last minute meeting of Oakmont ministers and Stephen Rodnenok, operator of the Lehigh Theater. Rodnenok agreed to cancel the show when the ministers presented their objections.

Representing the Ministerial Association of Oakmont, the Rev. Willard Mellin, pastor of the Oakmont Presbyterian Church, and the Rev. D. D. Dodds of the United Presbyterian Church, called upon Rodnenok yesterday. After the conference Mr. Mellin said:

"We (the Ministerial Association) objected to the performance because we thought it was a 'racket,' the ultimate object being to break down the Sunday blue laws, while operating under the pretense of charity. There were no threats of arrest used. The theater owner was pleased to co-operate with us as he told us he wanted his Sunday to continue to be his day of rest."

In Bellevue a notice was posted in front of the Bellevue Theater that because of conflicting opinions no Sunday benefit performance would be given.

Broadcast of Grand Opera Hinges on Finding Backer

NEW YORK, Nov. 23.—(AP.)—If the plans of the National Broadcasting Company meet success, grand opera will be broadcast Saturday afternoon from the Metropolitan Opera House. All that stands in the way, it was disclosed today, is the completion of financial details.

Gerard Chatfield, technical art director, and O. B. Hanson, manager of plant operations of the broadcasting company, company officials said, have succeeded in making satisfactory "pick up" and have decided upon the dress circle for the control station. The engineers would have liked to place it in the golden horseshoe, but with every box subscribed there was no room.

Whether Saturday matinee broadcasts of opera will become a fixture, it was said, hinged upon obtaining financial backing.

Next Saturday's scheduled opera is "L'Elisir d'Amore" (The Elixir of Love). Gigli will sing Caruso's favorite role of "Memorino," and others in the cast will be Fleischer, Falco, De Luca and Pinza. Serafin will conduct.

The broadcasting company, it was said, has been negotiating with several "sponsors" who would use the broadcast for advertising purposes, but the cost is so great there has been marked hesitation to undertake it.

WORLD TARIFF WAR SEEN IN INCREASES

By ROBERT S. THORNBURGH
International News Service

WASHINGTON, Nov. 23.—In the heavy increase in tariff duties in the United Kingdom, following on higher rates in Canada and the United States, business experts of the government today saw an international tariff war which they believe certainly would lead to reciprocal treaties between the principal trading nations of the world.

These experts differed only on the higher rates of the so-called Grundy tariff, the time of its passage leading to international retaliation. Since enactment of the law there has been a tremendous decrease in American trade, both as to exports and imports, although this development is largely due to the measure of the business depression and price decline.

The trade has diminished although the depressed conditions do not make possible to discern accurately its effect on American trade. A measurement of the results of retaliation must await the return of more normal conditions.

British Study Tariff Boost on Iron, Steel

LONDON, Nov. 23. (AP).—The Daily Telegraph today said the Board of Trade is considering higher tariff rates on iron and steel products under the new "anti-dumping" tariff law.

FUGITIVE HELD AS WIFE SOBS

A hysterical, tearful wife today saw her husband's past rise up to take him away from her and their three children.

In North Side Police Court Earl Gratz calmly admitted he had escaped from Oklahoma State Penitentiary eight years ago in a jail delivery.

He fled to Pittsburgh, married, set up a home at 723 Moravian way and called himself Earl Jones. Recently he concealed his identity while serving an 18-month sentence in Western Penitentiary.

His wife, weeping, promised to stand by him. She sobbed:

"I still love Earl. Since he left the penitentiary here he's been going straight. He told me after he was married he had escaped from the Oklahoma Penitentiary, but I didn't know anybody else here knew about it."

Gratz was arrested last night on the North Side in an automobile with Nick Saire, 33, of Glassport. It is believed police learned about him from a supposed friend in whom he confided.

Gratz and Saire met while prisoners in Western Penitentiary. Recently released, Saire went to Gratz a job as plumber's helper in Glassport. Gratz was convicted here as accessory to robbery.

COURT UPHOLDS DRY SEIZURES

WASHINGTON, Nov. 23.—(INS)—The Supreme Court, in a decision of far-reaching importance in enforcement of the prohibition law, today ruled that the government has power to seize all personal property in a "speakeasy" where liquor is sold in evasion of the revenue tax.

The case came from Butte, Mont., where the government sought forfeiture of a bar and other fixtures in the alleged saloon of Edward Ryan. Justice Stone delivered the opinion.

In seeking confiscation of the property, the government invoked a law passed in 1866—more than a half century before national prohibition.

In Arguing the case, Ryan's attorneys said that under the government's contention it could seize the priceless relics in the Metropolitan Art Museum of New York if an employe sold liquor there.

'ADS' OVERCOME TRADE LOSSES, KLEIN SAYS

Points Out Business Gains By Publicity; Counsels Manufacturers, Merchants

Universal Service

WASHINGTON, Nov. 23.—Stressing "publicity," "personnel" and "products" as the "three P's" to business success at this time, Dr. Julius Klein, Assistant Secretary of Commerce, gave a remarkable nation-wide radio broadcast last night.

It was a frank talk of sound advice to manufacturers, wholesalers and retailers on how to meet the present depression.

Advertising, Dr. Klein pointed out, has been a mighty aid to business during the present year. Through advertising linked with proper personnel and the right kind of product, gains instead of decreases have been the result, he declared, Dr. Klein said:

"There is no magic formula for increasing profits.

"In the last analysis it's simply the application of sound business principles, stick-to-itiveness, common sense and ingenuity, with special attention to those 'three P's' — vigorous publicity, well-trained personnel and well-selected products."

METHODS OF SUCCESS

Dr. Klein cited many instances of booming business through these methods. He said:

"The Chamber of Commerce in a middle-western city, in a hard-hit, primarily agricultural section at that, asked its members the question, 'How's business?' a few weeks ago.

"Among the answers were those of a hosiery mill running full time with more than 1,000 employes, whose wages were at the 1929 rate; a tire and rubber company that has been operating full force with a double shift for months, and a wood-working plant that is running until 9 o'clock or later every night in order to produce what its sales force has sold.

"These instances are not hand-picked, either.

"The manufacturer in many instances has increased his efforts to let prospective buyers know what he has to sell through skillfully planned advertising."

PROFIT IN PUBLICITY

Dr. Klein in his illustrations of increased business told of a manufacturer of piston rings for automobile motors. The manufacturer designed a new type of ring, but found after producing it that it would have to be sold at a price 10 per cent higher. He added:

"But the executives of the company knew the rings were worth the money and the first thing they did was to increase their advertising appropriation.

"The result was a 34 per cent increase in profits during the first six months of this year.

"Like genius, profits these days are a matter of perspiration rather than inspiration. In the vast majority of cases the business is there but we have to dig deeper to get it out. Improved methods of distribution have helped a good many firms do more business than ever during the depression."

Dr. Klein told of an automobile and accessory concern that in the first half of 1931 had increased its profits 170 per cent over the first half of 1930. It was accomplished, he said:

"By giving their customers about 50 per cent more motorcar value without increasing prices, by telling the world about it in a well-conceived advertising campaign and by increasing the number of their dealers."

FUMES VICTIMS LEAVE HOSPITAL

Two women and their three daughters, victims of carbon monoxide gas in their apartments at 5739 Center avenue, Saturday, were to be discharged from the West Penn Hospital today.

Mrs. Mary Breen, 50, and her daughters, Agnes, 21, and Ruth, 19, were found in their rooms Saturday morning overcome by fumes which James Walsh, inspector for the Equitable Gas Company, said had been given off by a faulty water heater.

An inhalator crew worked over Ruth for some time before she could be moved from the building.

The Breens' near-tragedy was discovered by Mrs. Winifred Wilcox, 32, the occupant of another apartment.

Saturday night, Mrs. Wilcox and her daughter, Edna, 12, also went to the hospital suffering from effects of the fumes.

W. S. Diggs, Welfare Leader, Hurt by Auto

W. S. Diggs, speakers committee chairman of the Welfare Fund and prominent philanthropist, was recovering in his home at 520 McCully street, Dormont, today from injuries suffered Saturday night when struck by an automobile.

Mr. Diggs, crossing West Liberty avenue, was knocked to the street by an automobile driven by W. R. Watson, of 221 Outlook drive, Mt. Lebanon.

Aliquippa Woman Finds Husband Dead

Blaze Raback, 59, was found dead in the bathroom of his home, 608 Beaver avenue, Aliquippa, early yesterday by his wife, Anna. He had been in ill health several months, it was said.

Boy Hurt in Fall From Street Car

George Evancov, 15, of 200 Ann street, Homestead, suffered injuries of the head when he fell from a street car on which he was said to have been stealing a ride. He was treated at Homestead Hospital.

Davis Stock Deals Bared in Senate Quiz

gator said, but paid in cash for their holdings.

After telling of the Watson and Davis stock transfers, Holland said:

"In no case did I find any other purchases where no liability was involved."

Davis and Watson secured their notes with the stock they were purchasing, turning the stock back to Dahlberg. The notes could be cancelled at any time, so there was no obligation on the part of the senators if the stock went down in value.

Holland said Senator Watson had visited one of the plantations of the Southern Sugar Company and efforts were made to get Al Smith to drive a cane harvester as a publicity stunt.

$10,000 PROBED

Previously, Holland had testified that Dahlberg had ordered $10,000 sent to Davis, but that records of the company showed no such payment. He said he received the information from S. S. Eveland, former vice president of one of Dahlberg's companies.

The committee called Holland in its inquiry into charges that a senator received $100,000 from a sugar company while the Hawley-Smoot tariff bill was before Congress.

The inquiry was demanded by Senator Davis, who previously voluntarily appeared and testified that the charges were "a contemptible lie" if aimed at him.

Holland testified he had investigated the "lobbying activities" of Dahlberg, of New York, president of the Celotex company and affiliated concerns. He testified that Eveland told him he had heard Dahlberg talk to Davis by telephone and later instruct his secretary, George J. Johnson, to phone Chicago and have $10,000 sent to the Senator.

CHARGE SIFTED

Holland said the Senate Campaign Expenditures Committee had inquired into Eveland's charges. Eveland said Johnson, testifying before that committee, had denied the allegations.

Looking over the books, Holland said he found that both Senator Davis and Senator Watson, of Indiana, the Republican leader, were stockholders of the Southern Sugar Company, one of the Dahlberg companies. He said Davis had 250 shares and Watson 105 shares.

Senator Walsh asked:

"Did you find any record of any transfer of funds?"

Holland had not. He said a bit later:

"I did not find record of any money being transferred at any time from Dahlberg or any of his companies to Davis."

FOUND LETTER

Holland said he found a letter from Dahlberg to Davis asking him to persuade Glenn B. Skipper, former Republican national committeeman from Florida, to accept an invitation to attend a meeting at Kansas City.

There was no response to this letter, he added. Walsh asked:

"Was there anything else in the records of the companies leading to the conclusion that Davis was lobbying?"

Davis, in 1926, when he was Secretary of Labor, acquired 500 preferred and 150 shares of common stock in the Celotex Company, Holland testified.

Senator Walsh pressed Holland for any information indicating "lobbying activities" by Senator Davis. He was a member of the cabinet when the Hawley-Smoot tariff bill was before congress.

Holland said he found a report to Dahlberg from his personal representative in Washington, Dan C. Goodwin, stating he had interviewed members of the senate and cabinet regarding the tariff bill. The report mentioned seeing Davis.

BOUGHT STOCK

Davis bought $94,775 worth of Celotex stock between June, 1926, and April, 1927, paying by checks, Holland said, and had obtained more liberal terms than smaller purchasers.

There followed some testimony on stock transactions by the Pennsylvania politician in which he profited.

Holland said E. V. Roberts, secretary of the Dahlberg Corporation, told him that while Davis made a profit, it was not exactly a case of the corporation being a philanthropist.

While the paper profit of the transaction mentioned was $16,875, Davis and the company each lost $8,437.

ROLPH TO HEAR WALKER'S PLEA

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 23.—(INS)—A preliminary conference probably will be held here Wednesday between Gov. James Rolph, Jr., and his advisers, and Mayor James Walker, of New York City, now en route here with others who have interested themselves in the new pardon application hearing of Tom Mooney.

Whether Mayor Walker will stop Tuesday at Sacramento, the state capital, to receive the official welcome planned for him, is not known yet.

Mooney's hearing is scheduled December 1. Under California's laws Mooney will not be allowed to attend any of the San Francisco sessions, but there is a possibility that at least one session may be held at San Quentin Prison where Mooney is serving a life term in connection with the 1916 Preparedness Day bombing at San Francisco, when many persons were killed and maimed.

Speed 400 Miles To Save Child From Choking

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 23.—A 400-mile automobile dash from Sutherland, Va., to Philadelphia, appeared to have saved the life of a 21-month-old boy who had a peanut lodged in his windpipe.

Julian Cadonis, the baby, was escorted by motorcycle police with his mother through Virginia, Maryland and Delaware to this city Saturday. The peanut was removed with a bronchoscope at University Hospital.

Attending physicians last night said the child's condition was fair and that they believed he would recover.

PREPARING SUIT ON POOR FUND

A taxpayer's bill for an accounting involving approximately $750,000 is to be filed in Common Pleas Court against the Allegheny County Board of Poor Directors within the next few days, according to well-informed sources.

The visiting committee appointed by Judge James H. Gray was to meet this afternoon to draw up the bill. Members of the committee, Attorneys E. H. Wicks, G. M. McDonald and Paul E. Hutchinson, have been working separately on the legal and accounting phases. It is reported that Attorney Walter W. Riehl will act as taxpayer in the bill.

Poor directors faced with this action are J. Clyde Miller, H. H. Dixon and Dr. W. L. Henderson. In addition to the $500,000 bond issue for construction purposes, which the visiting committee says was diverted to pay current expenses of the County Home at Woodville, the taxpayer's bill will include the financing of the $70,000 paupers' and real estate and insurance deals at the home.

British Beer Tax Slated to Go as Drinking Drops

LONDON, Nov. 23.—(Universal)—Worried that beer consumption in Britain and Ireland fell off 350,000 barrels during September, the government is reported preparing to remove the emergency beer tax probably by the end of this month.

It is declared the citizenry is being driven to non-alcoholic drinks and brewers are planning a "near-beer" product which would avoid the tax by containing less than 2 per cent alcohol.

The emergency beer tax was imposed by Viscount Snowden's supplementary budget, pushed through immediately after the fall of the Labor government.

BOND PROTECTS SCHOOLEY CASH

Controller James P. Kerr today said the city would lose nothing by reason of failure to find a $50,000 bond covering delinquent tax deposits by former Treasurer Roy D. Schooley in the closed Franklin Savings and Trust Company. He said Schooley's general $100,000 bond as treasurer, which is held by the Mayor, would more than offset any deficit in event the bank did not pay out 100 per cent.

EASY DIVORCE LAW ON IN ARK.

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., Nov. 23 (AP).—The Arkansas 90-day divorce law was definitely declared in effect by a decision of the State Supreme Court today.

By a five-to-two vote of the justices the court upheld Secretary of State Ed F. McDonald in refusing to accept petitions from the Home Protective Association for a referendum in the next general election in an effort to repeal the law.

If a referendum had been ordered the law, passed by the State Legislature early this year, would have been held in abeyance until voted upon.

Several divorce cases under the new 90-day residence requirements already are pending, most of them at Hot Springs. No decrees have been granted because of the uncertainty resulting from the legal fight on the law.

TEN INDICTED IN HARLAN RIOT

MT. STERLING, Ky., Nov. 23 (AP).—Ten Harlan County miners, mine union officials and former Evarts officers were indicted here today by a Montgomery County grand jury on charges of murder and conspiracy after murder indictments returned against them by a Harlan County grand jury had been quashed. Four of the 10 were accused also of aiding and abetting.

The action was the first maneuver in the legal battle between the commonwealth and the defense in trials on Harlan County indictments which had been set for today and was taken over objections of the defense. The cases were transferred here on change of venue.

All the charges were based on the killing of Deputy Sheriffs James Daniels and Otto Lee and Howard Jones, a commissary clerk, in a battle at Evarts last May 5. It was the battle that brought more than 300 National Guard troops into the Harlan coal fields to restore order.

ALL IN A DAY

By MARK HELLINGER

SOME 20 YEARS ago—perhaps last a wee bit less—a rickety old frame house stood in that section of New York which was known as the West Thirties. A strange couple ran the house. And strange people lived in that house. Which made it a great combination.

The couple that owned the house were a Mr. and Mrs. Boussout. He was a tall thin man with eyes that were sharp. And she was a thin little woman with eyes that were kindly and with hands that were always fed from difficult work. A busy couple were Mr. and Mrs. Boussout. Very busy indeed.

They had [illegible] to be busy [illegible] the house that they ran was a [illegible] theatrical [illegible] people they [illegible] could not afford [illegible] for what they [illegible] the utmost. [illegible] busy couple [illegible] house to see [illegible] dissatisfied.

The [illegible] theatrical [illegible] a week, plus [illegible] you merely [illegible] price for [illegible] cents. And [illegible] Roscoe that [illegible] the wine [illegible]

That [illegible] —was the [illegible] ergen couple. Mr. and Mrs. Boussout.

At the [illegible] I write Mrs. [illegible] too happy [illegible] of them [illegible] lady was [illegible] would be [illegible] And her husband [illegible]

The patrons [illegible] worried about [illegible] that new and [illegible] called the [illegible] ish was to [illegible] Mrs. Boussout [illegible] too happy to [illegible] portunity.

That [illegible] tleman for [illegible] was Dave [illegible] to consider [illegible] tant person [illegible] making motion [illegible] Boussout as [illegible] away his [illegible] like a great [illegible] Surely he [illegible] would amount to much.

Then, too, there were those [illegible] little girls [illegible] with their mother. Pickford [illegible] name was. One was little [illegible] The other was [illegible] Mary. How silly, thought Mrs. Boussout, was Mrs. Pickford [illegible] to put her daughters on the stage instead of plunging them [illegible] that very stupid thing [illegible]

How much [illegible] Mrs. Boussout felt there should be [illegible] had a chance [illegible] of themselves [illegible] for instance at [illegible] little Maymie [illegible] Maymie known to a few of her friends by the nickname [illegible] Texas was [illegible] the chorus of that popular success at the Criterion Theatre. She was a chorus girl in "The Snow Man." And she earned a salary that netted her $18 a week.

That Mrs. Boussout told the neighbors, was something to be proud of. Griffith the dreamer would be better off if he would drive a horse cab like the man who had the room on the second floor back. True the cab driver didn't make much money—but his income was steady. Sennett was the cab driver's name. His first name was Mack. And Mrs. Boussout liked him. He was steady.

And if those little Pickford girls couldn't land a good job in the [illegible] feed something he had worked on for some time. It was the closeup. The camera was employed that the face of the actress was shown enlarged to the audience. The rest of her body could not be seen.

Griffith had used his closeup idea in directing his first picture for Mary Pickford, with her new company. It had proved successful. And he had that day thrown it on the screen for the benefit of the president of the company. The president of that company was a little man named Laemmle. Carl Laemmle.

Griffith had asked what the trouble was, and Laemmle had grown red with excitement.

"What's the matter?" the president had screamed. "Can't you see what's the matter? You've cut her off. I'm paying that Pickford kid $125 a week and you throw nothing but her face on the screen. Are you crazy?"

Since [illegible] winter days have come and passed. The little frame house has long since vanished. And in its place a huge building—the home of a great magazine.

In the very spot, perhaps, where D. W. Griffith dreamed of his first closeup, a little stenographer is taking dictation from a fat boss and dreaming of Adolph Menjou. In the very spot where Mary Pickford celebrated her first success, a humble filing clerk is throwing the wrong cards into the right cabinet and dreaming of Clara Bow.

Thus, with the rush of time, a house of dreams has vanished. Money pours into the movie coffers. Mr. Schenck and Mr. Zukor and Mr. Lasky dabble in millions and millions of dollars.

Mr. Boussout is dead. He is on equal terms now with Marcus Loew and Rudolph Valentino. His worries are a thing of the past.

But Mrs. Boussout, who laughed at the movie dreamers, is still alive. She is selling flowers, they say, in a Brooklyn cemetery.

FREED IN DEATH OF MEXICANS

ARDMORE, Okla., Nov. 23 — (AP.)—The closing chapter of the tragedy in which two young Mexican college students of prominent families were killed last June by two Ardmore peace officers was written when the officers were acquitted of murder charges.

William E. Guess and Cecil Crosby, former Deputy Sheriffs, were found not guilty yesterday by a District Court jury of the murder of Manuel Garcia Gomez. Murder charges pending against Crosby in the death of Emilio Cortes Rubio, kinsman of the Mexican president, were dismissed.

Guess, who accepted responsibility for firing the fatal shots, was acquitted last summer of the murder of young Cortes Rubio.

F. M. Dudley, Assistant State Attorney General in charge of the prosecution, said dismissal of the case against Crosby closed the matter, which aroused international interest.

30 Men Fined, Jailed Under Begging Ban

Dino Borgioli, a very loud tenor from La Scala, in Milan, gave a generous song recital at the Young Men and Women's Hebrew Association last night. He was popular from the first song, and at last the audience grew audacious enough to call for any encore it wanted. Earl Mitchell was at the piano, and, turned loose upon such a program, he gave the best we have heard from him in a long while. It was a great show.

Mr. Lissfelt

Borgioli has long been an idol in Italy, but it is not difficult to know why he has not been sought for American opera houses. His voice is in excellent condition, thanks to fine training; he seems to know songs from all schools of music, but his sense of style is so limited that, in spite of the luxuriant outpouring of tone, he makes that tone for its own sake, and only rarely does one sense the musician behind the tenor.

Songs like "Amarilli" and "Caro mio ben," an encore, were distorted far beyond their proportions; on the contrary, the Brahms Gypsy songs were most astonishingly good, as was the Strauss "Morgen," another encore, the success of which was due greatly to the exquisite accompaniment. Two new Italian songs of Pizzetti and Tagliaferri are not only great contributions to song literature, but in these Borgioli displayed qualities that might have been more consistently employed in all his songs.

Other encores were Dvorak's "Songs My Mother Taught Me," "Princessita," of Padilla, Verdi's "La donna e mobile," and a Mexican song to which the singer played his own accompaniment.

MELTON SINGS BERCEUSE FROM 'JOCELYN' :: Famous Lullaby on WCAE Tonight

Monday, Nov. 23.

THE LOUDSPEAKER By Louis Reid

The Harvard men are in kick formation. It looks like Mr. Wood is going to kick—he's pardon dear friends. It begins to appear that Mr. Wood is about to kick. But he doesn't. He's passing instead. What a perfectly delicious pass. It fell gracefully (charmingly right into Mr. Crickard's hands. No butter on those hands. I mean his hands are not slippery. He's running fast. Right behind his front wonderful interference. The interference has not knocked two Yale tacklers a sprawling—bed pardon. The interference by a perfectly delightful piece of blocking has cleared Mr. Crickard's path of two threatening Yale players.

There goes the whistle. It's the end of the first period, folks must stop saying folks—folks may be all right in the Yankee Stadium but it just doesn't belong here. I hope I don't get a call down for it.

They are still cogitating. They would better hurry or the referee will penalize (wonder if I should have said "peenalize") them. There they return to the line of scrimmage.

Oh Mr. Lassiter has it. His knees are rising nearly to his brawny chest. I would say that he appears a difficult man to tackle. But he is tackled, after running five yards. My word, what a gorgeous tackle. I'm earnin' my jack today. Those lucky stiffs out in South Bend. The traditional struggle grows more colorful with each play. It would seem that the teams so far are quite evenly matched. Time out. Say, Bill hand me that dictionary, quick and say, open that book of etiquette to page 43. You know, to that paragraph about a guest's duties to his host.

Don't waste dollars on antiseptics that can't kill germs unless used full strength. Even when diluted with two parts of water, Pepsodent Antiseptic kills germs in 10 seconds. Thus—goes 3 times as far as other antiseptics. Thus $1 worth does the work of $3 spent for ordinary kinds.

STOP gargling for a minute. Please answer this question. Do you add water to your mouth wash? Spread it thin. Adding water robs most mouth antiseptics of power to kill germs. That's how millions fool themselves—but not their colds—and not the germs . . . not bad breath.

If you dilute your antiseptic choose one that kills germs even when diluted. Otherwise you haven't any right even to hope for quick relief.

A new discovery—SAFE yet powerful

Now there's a revolutionary antiseptic on the market—Pepsodent Antiseptic. Its formula is a radical advance. It climaxes the best antiseptic study of 50 years. A germ-killing agent is employed unlike those now in use. It makes Pepsodent Antiseptic from 5 to 11 times more powerful in killing germs than other leading mouth antiseptics, depending on which one you use.

Kills germs in 10 seconds diluted with 2 parts of water

That is the startling news in this new discovery. Think! You can mix Pepsodent Antiseptic with 1 or even 2 parts of water, to suit your taste, and it still kills germs in less than 10 seconds. That's where most other leading mouth antiseptics fail. Yet in spite of all that power, Pepsodent Antiseptic is utterly safe when used full strength. What a weapon this new antiseptic is in your fight against colds!

New security against bad breath (Halitosis)

And please remember when you use Pepsodent Antiseptic for colds you are doing double duty by also fighting bad breath. For Pepsodent Antiseptic checks bad breath 3 to 5 hours longer! That's Pepsodent Antiseptic's record in fighting this widespread social offense due to unhygienic mouth conditions. Immediately after use—95% of germs on mouth surfaces are destroyed. Two hours later the number of germs is still reduced by 80%. That is far longer acting than other leading mouth antiseptics.

To kill germs—most mouth antiseptics must be used full strength. So to mix such antiseptics with water is a waste of money. Contrariwise, Pepsodent Antiseptic can be mixed with twice its own volume of water. Thus Pepsodent Antiseptic goes 3 times as far—saves you $2 for every $1 you spend. Pepsodent Antiseptic comes in 3 sizes: 3 ounces for 25 cents—7 ounces for 50 cents—16 ounces for $1. The larger the size, the more for your money.

Combating a cold and checking bad breath are only two uses for this remarkable antiseptic. There are scores of other uses. Some are listed on this page. Learn to rely on Pepsodent Antiseptic whenever a safe, effective germ-killing agent is required. Keep it in the home. Take it with you when you travel.

Again we say: Quit being good to germs. They've laughed at you long enough. Play safe. Buy an antiseptic that really kills germs when diluted. Remember! You can fool yourself but you can't fool a cold.

BAD BREATH (Halitosis)

Pepsodent Antiseptic does double duty when combating colds and throat irritations. For at the same time it checks bad breath. Remember P. A. is 5 to 11 times more powerful in killing germs than other leading mouth antiseptics . . . and it kills germs when diluted.

We Now Present

By Darrell V. Martin, Radio Editor

FRED MILLARD, the fellow who installed Pittsburgh's police radio system, has a laboratory at 310 Washington road, Mt. Lebanon, where he makes test phonograph records of programs on the air, then invites local artists out to hear themselves as others hear them. Several artists have taken to making these phonograph records at regular periods to check on flaws in their technique. . . . Fred has another wrinkle which improves on Dr. Leon Levy's ingenious microphone contraption placed alongside his baby's crib which warns the family via loudspeaker in the dining or living room when the baby awakens. . . . Fred's idea makes it possible for parents to be out riding in a radio-equipped automobile and to tune in the baby's cries back home and then by way of a short wave transmitter in the car, modulate the carrier wave so that it rocks the cradle, hands the baby its milk bottle or gently clouts it on the head . . . the only disadvantage we can see in this stunt is the danger of "jamming" the relay controls which would result in the baby getting a heavy clout instead of its milk supply.

* * *

Question a Day:

Why does Fullerton McGough, announcer for the "Blues Chasers," always say "This is KQV in Pittsburgh—are you burning anything?" four or five times during this program?—T. G., Blawnox, Pa.

Answer—Each 15 minutes of this feature Fullerton asks if anyone is burning anything—because dozens of letters have been received telling "Jack and Tony" that while listening to the program, the women forget about pies and cakes in the oven.

* * *

Outstanding tonight—Dave Levin's Orchestra playing "Two Hearts in Waltz Time"—on WCAE at 8. James Melton doing the graceful and melodious Berceuse from "Jocelyn" on WCAE at 8:30 . . . the Phantom Caravan on WCAE at 10:45 and Jan Garber's music for KDKA ears at 11:30.

* * *

Studio Lights:

Yesterday we sat in Carnegie Music Hall with light and happy heart as Dr. Charles Heinroth masterly interpreted the simple beauty of Dawes' "Melody" and the loveliest cantilena of all Italian opera, the Intermezzo from "Cavalleria Rusticana," and wondered how long it would be until some local station undertook to put these popular organ recitals back on the air . . . but last night our heart dropped heavy like an anchor when we learned that this genius is scheduled to take up a new post in New York about February 1 . . . Pittsburgh loses too many true artists, and our radio stations can share some of the blame . . .

By the way, why doesn't some program sponsor pick up that Dawes "Melody" for a signature? It's catchy, like the "Perfect Song" (Amos 'n' Andy) and Tosselli's "Serenade" (The Goldbergs) . . .

Moonshine and Honeysuckle cast coming to Pittsburgh? Somebody's playing a joke on the public, we are informed by John T. Royal, program director of NBC who knows nothing about it and states furthermore that the cast has no plans for going on the road . . .

Inducing the weather man to appear before the KQV microphone during the Radio Rascals' birthday celebration Saturday, was a clever gesture by Uncle Henry (Lewis H. Abel) . . . Mr. Brutzman was inveigled to predict fair weather for the parade in which four of the miniature automobiles became stranded . . . one spectator reported seeing the missing cars under a big truck which hauled the band.

D. K. Oakdale About Bene Falvo . . . her night name is Bridget Clementina Falvo.

How perfectly Stokowski succeeds in projecting his esthetic soul over the air waves was demonstrated to us Saturday night when a group of guests at WJAS broke out in applause after his dynamic production of Beethoven's "Fifth Symphony" . . . the great conductor turns next to the "romantic" composers of the nineteenth century for his third broadcast on Saturday, December 5 . . .

We had always visualized Louise Homer as a great mother, but it wasn't until yesterday that we learned she has five daughters and a son . . . the way she said, "All right, Kay," when signaling her daughter, Katherine, to begin playing her accompaniment on the piano, bred an intimacy with listeners that they shall not soon forget . . .

Gene Baldridge is performing admirably in that Radio Review directed by Zoel Parenteau . . . indeed we think Gene an ace in the school of Crosby and Columbo and a splendid successor to Dick Powell . . . we had been so accustomed to hearing him sing religious music that we never dreamed he could turn to popular songs with the ease and poise he displayed yesterday.

THE FLETCHERS ARE HIGHLY APPRECIATIVE!

In addition to Miss Dorothy Fletcher, there are three other young people in the Fletcher family. "There's hardly a winter that doesn't bring a cold-and-cough to us sometime," says her mother Mrs. L. D. Fletcher, of 314 Spring Lane, Scranton, Pa. "A few years ago there was a whole chorus of coughs in the family, and remedies that we had always used failed to give much relief. My sister had used REM for her children, so I decided to try it. We were so pleased with the results. It seemed to be the only thing that gave them relief." So it goes---family after family finds that REM relieves coughs quickly, pleasantly, efficiently--not in isolated instances, but in case after case!

There's no cough medicine exactly like REM. Ask for REM ---and get what you ask for!

INCREASED DONATIONS MARK WELFARE RECANVASS

AIDES CHEERED BY LUNCHEON REPORT

Employes Division Leads Contributions for Day; $3,627,199 Subscribed

An encouraging response to the extended drive of the Welfare Fund campaign came today with announcement that 15,476 subscriptions had added $386,360.30 to the total, bringing it to $3,627,199.89.

The employes' division alone reported 12,1266 contributions, the largest thus far in any one day. Total subscriptions to date number 52,208, compared with a grand total last year of 110,000.

Three contributions from Sewickley aggregated $55,800, workers at today's luncheon in the William Penn Hotel were informed.

Another luncheon will be held at noon tomorrow. The drive will continue through Thanksgiving. A final meeting will be held Monday, at which reports for the week will be received. Optimism prevailed today that the goal of nearly $6,000,000 will be reached.

Discussing the campaign plans for the extended period, A. K. Oliver, Welfare Fund president, said:

"Our guns will be trained for the coming week on those subscribers who have not given as much as they should. We are able, from information to which we have access, to make pretty fair estimates of what each individual is able to give. We are going to make a careful comparison of every subscription with the 'rating' assigned to the subscriber. Cases of inadequate giving revealed by this checkup—and there will be many of them—will be turned over to an 'emergency battalion' for resolicitation."

70 FUND DRIVES 'OVER TOP'

NEW YORK, Nov. 23.—(INS)—Community chest drives in 101 towns and cities of the nation netted $31,357,723 for welfare and relief purposes, it was announced today. This was 92.2 per cent of the aggregate goals of the campaigns.

In 70 cities, it was reported, individual goals were attained or exceeded.

The report was submitted to Walter S. Gifford, director of the President's organization on unemployment relief, and to Owen D. Young, chairman of the committee on mobilization of relief resources by the National Association of Community Chests and Councils.

Fire in Homestead Causes $4,500 Loss

Damage estimated at $4,500 was caused by fire of undetermined origin in a three-story building occupied by the Jackson & Davis Furniture Company at 113 East Eighth avenue, Homestead, yesterday. The fire was confined to the first floor of the building by members of the Central Fire Company. Clothing was damaged by smoke in the Howard Cleaning Company, 115 East Eighth avenue.

Whispering Campaign Threatens Success of Drive to Aid Jobless

Chairman Replies to Rumors Aimed at Relief Fund

The most deplorable whispering campaign ever directed at a community undertaking, was today blamed for the probable failure of Pittsburgh's combined welfare unemployment relief campaign by Joseph Dilworth, general chairman.

Dilworth declared Pittsburgh is being swept by a series of baseless rumors referring to reports about the Welfare Fund, its methods and its agencies. He declared:

CALLS REPORTS ABSURD

"The absurdity of these reports is almost too apparent to warrant rebuttal. Of course, the 8,000 to 10,000 men and women who are working in the appeal receive nothing. They are even the ones who give first and most generously to the fund. The board of directors and committee members and all leaders give time and money without any return, and all volunteers are spending their own money for meals, gasoline and other expense. They take that as a matter of course. It has been the rule of the Welfare Fund, since its inception four years ago.

"The trained women who are on the staffs of our social agencies are far from overpaid. Not only do they start, after rigorous training, at a salary that many an office secretary would refuse, but promotions are slow and there is a very definite limit. Social workers long ago took a voluntary reduction of 10 per cent, besides which they are giving liberally to the campaign. The Family Welfare Association, one of the 46 major agencies in the organization, is struggling under the heaviest burden in its career. It has more than 240 on its staff, and not one is carrying a load of less than 100 families, while many are carrying 150. This unusual situation began last winter when agencies undertook to administer funds appropriated by the city, and has been continued owing to the increasing load.

DISTRIBUTION EXPLAINED

"Money given to the Welfare Fund will be distributed proportionately to all agencies in the fund and to the Emergency Association, for employment and relief purposes. So far as reports of excessive overhead are concerned, the Family Welfare Association keeps a definite record of all money intended to go to designated families, and this is expended in accordance with wishes of donors.

"The cost of the Welfare Fund campaign and administration through the year is lower for 1932 than ever, and it never was higher than 6.5 per cent, the figure for its first year, when it had only 25 agencies. The present cost is 1.9 per cent.

"The leaders of the Welfare Fund who give their own money to the cause are just as anxious as anyone that no money shall be wasted, and they know it is not wasted or misdirected. The imputation that they may not always know what is going on is absurd, for the Welfare Fund committees on endorsement and budget examine each agency thoroughly.

"We are always open to constructive criticism. No agency, being human, can avoid some mistakes. But when you hear some story, ask yourself whether the real motive is not a desire to find an excuse for not giving. Or let us know the complaint so that it may be traced. We have traced a number and have invariably found them baseless."

Some Pathetic Victims of Too Much Emphasis

—By ARTHUR 'BUGS' BAER—

A select list of some of our Saturday footballers who placed too much emphasis on sport:

Pudgy Dabree. Young journalist who quit being collegiate and became editorial about proselyting. He will recover, although there is no demand for it.

Unky Russell. Mixed booting with a raccoon coat. Result was they had to chop down a tree to rescue him. He earned a letter, but is too smart to open it.

Dinty Moore. Hoped that Southern California would win, but bet on Notre Dame. Figured the white meat of the turkey was better than the wishbone.

Prof. Dunbox. Thinks football is degrading and brutal. Has the chair in English. But will take a seat on the 50-yard line in any language.

Hold Rites for Boy Rail Bridge Victim

Word was received here from Detroit today of the funeral of Robert Weir, 12, son of Mrs. Ida Getty Weir, former resident of the South Side. The boy's body was recovered Thursday from River Rouge, where he was drowned Armistice Day when he and five others were trapped by two trains crossing a trestle in opposite directions.

Weir and another boy were drowned in a leap from the trestle, and a third boy was killed by one of the trains. The others saved their lives by hanging from a railing.

Finds Wife Dead, Man Tries Suicide

MIAMI, Fla., Nov. 23.—(AP.)—The body of Mrs. Lillian Hart Shugrue, 31, formerly of New York, was found hanging by a strap in her home at Hialeah, near here, yesterday.

Her husband, James J. Shugrue, found the body and tried to commit suicide in his grief, police said. He was placed in the county jail in order that he might be guarded against another suicide attempt.

CANAL BACKERS AT PARLEY IN ST. LOUIS

Pittsburghers Seek Support Of Mississippi Group for Lake Erie-Ohio River Route

Pittsburgh delegates were in St. Louis today for the annual meeting of the Mississippi Valley Association and to seek the association's support of the Lake Erie and Ohio River canal project, which is to be presented at the forthcoming session of Congress. The meeting will be continued through tomorrow.

The delegates believe support of the Mississippi Valley Association, recognized as the most powerful advocate of inland waterways in the nation, would strengthen the local movement for the materialization of the waterways.

Among those representing the city are Alexander W. Dann, chairman of the Lake Erie and Ohio River Canal Board; Thomas A. Dunn, president of the Pittsburgh Chamber of Commerce; William B. Rodgers, George M. Lehman, city engineer; City Councilman W. Y. English and Director of Public Works Edward G. Lang.

In addition the Pittsburgh delegation will urge support for other local waterway improvements. Dann will make an address.

2 MEN KILLED IN TRAFFIC CRASHES

Many Injured Treated At Hospitals; Wild Ride Terminated After Chase

Two men were killed and many persons were injured in automobile accidents in the Pittsburgh district yesterday and early today.

Walter Liszka, 23, of 940 Kennedy street, Carnegie, was killed, and Joseph McNamara, of 343 Murray avenue, Bridgeville, was injured early today when two automobiles collided head-on on the Washington pike, between Bridgeville and Woodville.

Edward S. Constable, of 323 East Thirteenth avenue, Homestead, a former policeman, and steel inspector for the city of New York, was killed early today when his machine crashed with another car on the William Penn highway west of Ebensburg.

A man, a woman and her two children were injured yesterday when two automobiles crashed head-on in Carson street, near Point Bridge. The injured were taken to South Side Hospital. They are Mrs. Mabel Gaugler, 23, of 1817 Crosby avenue, her children, Eugene, 5, and Richard, 6, and Edwin McClosky.

INJURED BY TRUCK

Walter Price, 43, residence unknown, was injured seriously when he was struck by a baking company truck at Forbes and Lawn streets. C. J. Moore, of 511 Climax street, driver, was arrested, charged with reckless driving. The injured man was taken to Montefiore Hospital, where he was reported suffering from a probable fracture of the skull.

Elsie Watkins, 5, of 213 Stoddard street, was injured when she was struck at Lacock and Anderson streets by an automobile driven, police said, by William Metzger, of 1502 Hetzel street. Metzger said the child ran in front of his car. She was taken to Allegheny General Hospital.

After he crashed into two cars, police say, Alfred Ephiner, 21, of 804 Arch street, was arrested following a chase by a radio car attached to North Side Station. Dr. W. H. Evans pronounced him under the influence of liquor, police said, adding that the car was stolen from W. J. Stringer, of 3048 Churchview street.

Alex Lensoick, 18, of 4 Brady street, was injured seriously last night when a truck parked in front of 2022 Forbes street, knocked him from the side of a street car on which he was "stealing" a ride, according to a police report. He was removed to Mercy Hospital where it was reported he was suffering from a probable fracture of the skull.

Argentina Closes Special Election

BUENOS AIRES, Nov. 23.—(AP.)—Argentina's presidential election was completed yesterday with new voting in eight provinces where technical irregularities occurred in the nation-wide election two weeks ago.

Counting on the additional returns began today with expectation of an early indication whether Augustin P. Justo, Conservative, has defeated Lisandro de la Torre, Leftist nominee, whom he now is leading.

2 Exiled Bishops Arrive in England

HULL, England, Nov. 23.—(AP.)—Looking like destitute emigrants, Bishop Meslonas and Bishop Makarios, who were banished from the Island of Cyprus in connection with the recent revolt, arrived yesterday aboard an Italian cargo steamer.

WILL ROGERS SAYS

S. S. EMPRESS OF RUSSIA,
Via San Francisco, Nov. 23.

To the Editor, Sun-Telegraph:

On the Empress of Russia—Soviets perhaps call it now Lenin's Ferry—with my old friend Floyd Gibbons. If I had the world to pick from there is no one I would rather go with. I met his in Warsaw, Poland, in '26 when we were covering Pilsudski's revolution. On the train with Floyd crossing Canada from the East was 22 Chinese going home on this boat. When I saw old Field Marshal Gibbons with 22 Chinese I appointed myself master of ceremonies of 20 Japanese who are also on the boat going home. We may have some news for you any day now as this Gibbons-Rogers war is not under the supervision of the League of Nations.

Yours, WILL.

Accused in Drunken Fight, Jailed Dry Faces Hearing

A federal prohibition agent, who, Dormont police say, went on a drunken rampage in a West Liberty avenue restaurant, spent Sunday in the borough lockup and today faced a hearing before Burgess Charles Chamberlain on charges of pointing firearms, resisting arrest and disorderly conduct.

Paul R. Reger, the agent, was arrested at 3 o'clock Sunday morning in a restaurant at Tennessee and West Liberty avenues, where, according to Chief Ralph Miller, of Dormont, he flourished a revolver and threatened the proprietor and two customers. One of the customers ran for a policeman, and Patrolmen George C. Stricker and Adrian Fedor responded and arrested Reger.

Reger, police say, is attached to the local prohibition force and is assigned to the Bureau of Industrial Alcohol. It is Reger's duty, police said he told them, to inspect commercial supplies of alcohol.

Patrolmen Stricker and Fedor reported Reger resisted and that they had to use force in disarming him and taking him to the lockup. According to Chief Miller, a physician who examined the prisoner pronounced him under the influence of liquor.

TOY MISSION AGAIN PLAYS SANTA

Manager Makes Appeal For Playthings for Needy Children of District

Pittsburgh needy children again will have their Christmas brightened when the Toy Mission distributes its annual collection of toys, books and games, according to George L. Bond, manager of the mission.

Headquarters for the Christmas project have been opened at Market street and Third avenue, Bond says, and active solicitation of toys to be given needy children has begun.

The playthings are sought every year from more fortunate homes. Used and new toys, games and books are collected from school children, office workers and stores. Used dolls are redressed by volunteer workers.

Between 17,000 and 18,000 children received the gifts the day before last Christmas, Bond says, and more, he hopes, will be on the list this year.

The mission started 38 years ago in an effort to make a little happier the poor's Christmas. The first year only 25 children were on the list.

Smith, occupant of a log hut on the Lincoln highway, North Versailles Township, ended his life with a shotgun yesterday, according to a coroner's report. Bombings Increase, But Losses Shrink

CHICAGO, Nov. 23.—(AP)—There have been 109 bombings in Chicago so far this year, or 35 more than in 1930, but the bombs appear to be losing their force.

These figures were made public today by the Employers' Association in a statement, which said that the amount of damage from the 109 bombs was estimated at $102,000 compared with $423,850 in 1930.

Carries Blade In Brain for 30 Years

CHICAGO, Nov. 23.—(AP)—For three years Linnie Larson, 59, has been walking around with a two-and-a-half-inch blade in his brain without knowing what was the matter with him.

This week surgeons at the County Hospital will attempt the delicate task of removing the obstruction believed to have been lodged there in a saloon fight long before the advent of prohibition.

It was only last week that Larson went to the hospital for treatment. He said he had occasional fits of unconsciousness which came without warning. An X-ray disclosed the knife point in the left frontal lobe over the eye.

ROBBERS STEAL ALCOHOL

Police and detectives of the downtown district today were on the trail of robbers who some time between Saturday night and early today forced entrance into the Makrauer Barber Supply Company, 519 First avenue, and stole 19 drums of denatured alcohol valued at $445. Each drum officials of the company said, contained 50 gallons.

The scene of the robbery a dark and lonely street at night, gave the thieves an excellent opportunity to work with practically no fear of being discovered. It is about five blocks from Central Police Station.

Police believed that a truck had been run up to the front door late Saturday night or early yesterday and the loot carted away to some warehouse.

WHEAT ASKED TO HELP FEED NEEDY

Committee Makes Appeal To Farmers; Clothing for Campaign Workers Sought

Collection of surplus wheat to be ground into breakfast food is a further step to be undertaken by the Surplus for Needy Committee this week in its campaign to help feed families of the unemployed in Pittsburgh this winter, according to announcement of officials.

Farmers in the neighborhood of Greater Pittsburgh who responded generously and promptly to the appeal for apples, peaches, pears and other products in the committee's canning drive again will be called upon to donate surplus wheat.

Arrangements are under way whereby part of the canned goods will be distributed to the public schools for part of the meals supplied to undernourished children.

Digging and transportation of potatoes has been handicapped, according to Chairman Harry I. Miller, because the majority of the workmen are not supplied with warm clothing and it is feared with the advent of colder weather the work cannot be carried on.

Persons having surplus men's clothing are asked to communicate with the Surplus for Needy Committee, Room 616 Berger Building, phone Court 0233, and they will be called for. Or they may be delivered to the committee's warehouse at 247 Water street.

Smart SHOPPING

"How good is it?"
That's it!

ABOUT anything and everything they buy, smart shoppers like to ask one question—"How good is it?"

Chesterfield welcomes smokers who buy their cigarettes that way.

• • •

OUR tobacco buyers are smart shoppers, too. They "shop" for the ripest, mildest, sweetest-tasting leaf that grows. And they won't take anything else.

"How good" are Chesterfields? Well, consider their blending.

Blended and cross-blended . . . not merely mixed together. Blended first by crops and countries . . . then cross-blended again and again . . . to produce a flavor and aroma that are Chesterfield's alone.

That's how we get that better taste . . . that's why Chesterfields are milder. Even the paper they're rolled in is the whitest, cleanest and purest that money can buy.

And the package . . . clean, bright, fresh-looking . . . see how easily it opens, yet how tightly it's sealed.

• • •

Milder? Right! Taste better? You bet they do! They're pure, too—and they certainly do satisfy!

Good . . . they've got to be good! There's value here. We know, because we put it in . . . and you'll smoke it out with every one you light.

"Sure I shop for cigarettes—Chesterfields satisfy me"

RULING AWAITED ON PENNSY TERMINAL

P. S. C. Decision Against '30 Plan Would Clear Path For Proposal Made in '25

An early decision is expected by the Public Service Commission approving or disapproving the 1930 contract between the City of Pittsburgh and the Pennsylvania Railroad for the construction of the latter's proposed $20,000,000 terminal and station.

It is said that should the commission decide against the 1930 plan, which was a compromise the railroad could go ahead with the 1925 project, approved some time ago by the commission. In such event, it was learned through railroad channels, the subject of plan again would have to be threshed out in Philadelphia.

Argument regarding the merits of the two plans was heard recently in Harrisburg. Doubt is expressed, on account of the voluminous record submitted, that the commission will be able to make a decision this year. In the event of the 1930 plan being approved, the utilities are sure to appeal to the Superior Court, it was learned, because they are fighting the acceptance of this on the grounds that it is a makeshift and not in the public interest.

The railroad claims the courts and not the commission should decide whether the utilities have the proper cause for complaint since the latter are protesting against the commission approving the compromise plan.

On the other hand, the utilities claim the commission has jurisdiction to inquire into every phase of the 1930 contract and must determine that the contract as a whole is in the interest of the public before it can approve it.

Beaten and robbed by a Negro, Miss Hazel Weaver, 21, cashier of the Sheridan Square Theater, was reported in a serious condition in Pittsburgh Hospital today suffering from shock.

Miss Weaver was walking from the East End theater to her home at 6802 McPherson boulevard when the man stepped from behind a billboard in darkened Penn avenue near Beechwood boulevard.

His blows blackened both of her eyes and he scratched her face and hands and tore her fur coat after dragging her behind the billboard. Miss Weaver fought back, offered him her coat and purse and asked the thug not to harm her. He took the purse containing $13 and fled.

Miss Weaver slumped to the ground unconscious. Recovering, she crawled to the street where a passing motorist picked her up and rushed her to Pittsburgh hospital.

$100,000 JEWEL HOLDUP FOILED

CHICAGO, Nov. 23 (AP)—Three men were prisoners today and at least two others were sought as members of a robber gang which invaded the home of William H. Mitchell in suburban Lake Forest and escaped with $100,000 in jewelry taken from Mr. and Mrs. Mitchell and their seven guests.

Most of the jewelry was recovered from the overcoat pocket of one of the robbers. The garment had been abandoned when the owner became entangled in a fence as he fled the bullets of policemen who interrupted the holdup early yesterday.

The robbers, numbering five or six, entered the home shortly after midnight. While they were forcing Mr. and Mrs. Mitchell and the guests to surrender their valuables, William Matheson, the family chauffeur, slipped upstairs and called the police. He had barely time to hide beneath a bed before one of the bandits, searching the house, entered the room.

JUNIOR HEADS HOLD CONFERENCE

THE MOULDED SILHOUETTE IS ACHIEVED BY SET-IN BANDS

Paris Bureau, Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph

PARIS, Nov. 23.—The band still plays a prominent role in the fashioning of the schoolgirl of the best tracks. Scarcely a mode or fashion that does not proudly show how it owes its indebtedness to the smartly straightened that molds the figure and accents its sleek, snug lines. These bands are set in with mathematical precision and help to achieve that geometric look that is so smart and is at the same time so expensive looking. And the object of despair to the copyist since this type of manipulation is not easy to duplicate.

AND SO BOTH afternoon and evening frocks of wool bands to double their effectiveness by them and their presence is well placed. I have in mind a frock that looks simple at first glance, but is in reality a complicated affair through its moulded silhouette achieved by set in bands. You will find that the initial outlay is soon forgotten in the success that such a frock will achieve for you. Few good clothes of this type and you will be perfectly and happily dressed for all occasions from the simple little affair to the large and worldly reception.

* * *

SHOWN IS AN Irene Dana ensemble with both the frock and coat owing much to set in bands. The smart frock is of dark brown heavy crepe. A lattice pattern in heavy machine stitching covers the close fitting lower sleeve, the narrow plastron at the front of the bodice and the yoke of the skirt. Vertical tucks at the top of each side of the bodice pass beneath diagonal, set in bands of the material. These bands run over the shoulders to meet in back at the neck line. A similar effect is carried out in the skirt yoke. The puffed sleeves with their greatest width at the elbow are new and quite becoming.

* * *

THE ACCOMPANYING coat is of dark brown Givelva, a new woolen for winter, with a soft rather coarse surface. The large collar, interestingly cut at the lapel, is of red fox. The spiral piecings on the sleeve and the tiered piecings on the bodice are typical of the modes of this house.

Mrs. J. M. Steim Presides for First Time

Programs, club management, senior-junior courtesies, scouting, publicity and activities were only a few of the subjects discussed at the district conference of junior presidents in the Congress of Clubs on Saturday night. It was Mrs. Joseph M. Steim's first conference since she was made State Federation chairman of juniors. Mrs. Steim's spirit and beautiful, free, friendly attitude that exists between her and the juniors one understands exactly why she was chosen for this important post in the state organization. Presiding with her charm of the air of a comradely conversation but she always commands attention and her meetings are never outside the bounds of parliamentary procedure.

Washington, Westmoreland, Beaver and Allegheny counties were represented by the 50 juniors and their senior advisors at the dinner. Mrs. Steim introduced the new district chairman of juniors, Mrs. F. R. Davis of Carrick, who made just the sort of happy, humorous speech that shows why she was so popular as county chairman. Mrs. J. G. Chalfant, new district president of the Federation, was also introduced and urged the juniors to co-operate with the new administration's attitude of the World Court and disarmament.

No Girl Scout troop is a Girl Scout troop until it has been registered with the national scout organization. Mrs. John Gard, of Irwin, told the audience. Mrs. W. D. Davies, Washington County Junior chairman, told of her juniors' activities, mite boxes for scholarship work and a settlement kitchen where cooking and sewing are taught and a library operated.

Mrs. J. M. Carothers, Westmoreland County chairman, Mrs. Richard B. Perry, former vice chairman of junior and now corresponding secretary of the federation, Mrs. C. C. Taylor, state chairman of work for the blind, and Miss Clara Terwilliger, state chairman of juniors and now corresponding secretary of the Federation, interesting cloth toys which the New Kensington junior girls have made for Christmas distribution among the needy.

Most of these were made from pieces of cloth left over from the making and making-over of garments, which is another commendable piece of work done by the New Kensington members.

Don't Poison Child's Mind With Revenge Ideas

Revenge—does it pay?

Dixie thinks it will.

She's living for the day when she'll make Joe and his family "pay till it hurts" for the wrong which they did her.

It was a terrible wrong—as hard a blow as any woman could be called upon to bear.

If it had happened to you—would you feel as she does? And if you did, would it pay you . . . will it pay Dixie to devote a lifetime to revenge? Dear Miss Martin:

I wonder if you can help me, and give me some good advice. I'll tell you my story.

"I went with a young chap for a year and a half, and became engaged to him. That same year he ran away with his firm's roll. After being questioned by the police for a couple of months, I finally heard from him.

BLAMED BY HIS FAMILY

He asked me to help him, but not to let his people know where he was. However, his mother was suffering, and I couldn't stand it. My heart bled for her. So I told her where he was. They seemed pleased, and I believe that they appreciated what I had done. His father brought him home. I forgave him, because I loved him dearly.

"He was put on probation by the court, and we were married—secretly. When I realized I was going to have a baby, I told my folks. They forgave me, and gave me all the money they could spare.

"Joe wouldn't tell his people—but I did—and they said it was all my fault, and practically slammed the door in my face. They told him not to live with me . . . . and he didn't. I had my baby—alone! He didn't come to see me, or even know when or where our baby was born. And if you could see my little son! He's so sweet! You would love him! When he was a month old, Joe came to see him—and to tell me that he would never see me or him again. That he didn't want to.

WANTS REVENGE

"Well, it didn't hurt. For I knew Joe would some day suffer as I did. So I took it on the chin, without a word. But I'll make him pay till it hurts—and his folks, too. I am taking up stenography. I will get a position, and see that my little son gets everything he needs.

"I don't hate Joe. It isn't in me to hate him. But I'll show him and his people that I am made of finer stuff than they are. I am young yet—only 19. So I have plenty of time. Do you think I am right, and doing the wise thing?

"DIXIE."

Yes, Dixie, you're doing one very right and wise thing. You're going ahead to educate yourself . . . to make yourself finer and stronger, for that little son of yours.

But you're also doing one very wrong thing. And that wrong thing will undo all the right you're doing, unless you stop it. You're living for revenge. You're living to make Joe suffer.

Well, maybe you can. But what will be happening to you and your little lad in the meantime? You'll be living in an atmosphere of hate. Stop and think just what that will mean.

Would you take your boy, and lock him in a black, evil hole, away from the laughter and love and joy which is his right?

GRUDGE IS POISONOUS

Would you feed him daily doses of poison every day—subtle, secret poison, which gradually wrecked him, body, mind and soul?

Of course you wouldn't! Yet that is exactly what you are planning on doing. That is what this constant creed of revenge will do to your boy. In the end the hate you send out will come back on him . . . will ruin his life. You will do him and yourself infinitely more harm than Joe and his family ever dreamed of doing.

You should make Joe pay—but not in the way you plan. Despise him and forget him, as a man—but don't let him dodge his financial obligation as the father of your child. That much you should do, Dixie. But don't hate. Free your life of grudge, as you would of any other evil, poisonous thing. Forget the black past—go ahead into the happy, free future. Let your boy rejoice in his mother, as well as honor her.

Many Real Romances Spring from Chance Acquaintanceships—Fay King

By FAY KING

There is always a danger in taking up too readily with strangers.

Yet it has seemed to me a pity that young people who do not happen to move in the same circle of friends, should not become acquainted when they are naturally attracted to each other.

And when they know a little of each other, such as where each works and pass each day, I can't see any harm in their speaking and becoming acquainted.

Many a real romance and happy marriage has begun in such a way, but they hesitate to confess it lest it belittle them, and claim to have been properly introduced.

Yet one might be properly introduced to a most worthless person by an indiscriminate friend.

Madge Near Collapse Following Her Exciting Experience

"Madge, Madge, darling! Don't cry like that! I didn't mean—What did I say, anyway?"

Dicky's voice broke into querulous, bewildered questioning, as he bent over the couch where I lay sobbing against Lillian's shoulder.

From her knees beside me, Lillian's voice ceased the "there, there" which she was uttering exactly as she would have spoken the words in Marion's childhood, and changed to sharpness.

"You said a plenty, although I grant you that you probably haven't the slightest idea of the place where you spilled the lentils. But let me whisper gently in your shell-like ear that when you're dealing with a woman as near collapse as this one, who's just been through an ordeal which would try the nerves of a squaw, you want to let your communication be yea, yea. Never mind the nay, nay. Give her a pat on the head instead of a kick."

I knew that she was rattling on to give me a chance to pull myself together.

"You mustn't blame Dicky like that," I said, and realized as I uttered the words that my voice held a distinctly pettish note. Lillian laughed so delightedly that I knew she was triumphant because of the success of her ruse, and she spread her hands in an exaggerated gesture of appeal toward my father.

"Now, I ask you, Chief," she intoned, "did you ever know the fate of the meddler to be other than this? Allah, he knows I've had my head bashed often enough by an irate wife when I've tried to keep her husband from beating her up. But I'm a fool for punishment. However, my lady!" she laughed down at me, "the next time, I'm going to let your husband go through with the beating, whether you need it or not."

I was able to laugh back at her, and Dicky joined in our merriment. But my father's smile was a reluctant one, and I saw his eyes rest on me with keen appraisal. That he guessed how near hysteria was my laughter, I surmised; was sure of it when he touched Dicky on the arm.

"Better bring 'round the car," he said, "and get her home as soon as possible."

"But—is she fit to go?"

Lillian put me back upon my pillows and stood up, smiling at Dicky's troubled, bewildered face.

"Of course, she isn't. But—neither is she fit to stay here, and the sooner we get her to bed and to sleep the better."

"All right, let's go!" Dicky exclaimed, and was striding to the door when my father's voice again stopped him.

"On second thought, Richard, I wish you would stay here with Margaret and Lillian. I'll get the car, and I'll drive. You can take care of Margaret better than I can."

I wondered if I were wrong in conjecturing that his words might be interpreted "defend" instead of "take care." I had not conjugated my father's moods and tenses through the years without being able to read something of his mental processes and I knew that my story of the Chinese who had threatened me because I would not give up the letter had made him feel that I needed guarding even more than did the children.

But I could feel neither fear nor curiosity, and I lay back upon my pillows, utterly spent, while my father hurried out of the room, and Lillian busied herself with picking up the things which I had taken from my bag in search for the little pistol, and putting them in the bag again. Dicky paced up and down the room, glancing anxiously at me whenever he turned, until reassured by the smile which I forced to my lips. Then, with his usual ease in throwing off worry, he sauntered over to Lillian.

"Holding the inquest?" he asked idly, then as she picked up the silencer pistol and put it into the pocket of her coat instead of back into my bag, I heard a surprised little intake of his breath. Then he put a hasty comment, so obviously meant to cover his real thought that it betrayed as well as words could have done his realization that Lillian was not entirely sure our journey home was to be a peaceful one.

"I wish somebody's bright mind would figure out just why the writer of this letter to Lee Chow should imagine that our car was a branch postoffice."

Lillian wrinkled her forehead meditatively.

"It is queer," she admitted. "Lee Chow kept his business so much to himself that I doubt if anybody besides ourselves knew of his connection with us through Hugh."

"One person did," I said, excitedly, for suddenly I was sure of the author of the letter to Lee Chow which had brought to me consequences almost spelling tragedy.

Household Hints

Clean hot water poured down the drainpipes of the sink will keep them free of grease. Do it after each dishwashing.

After ironing handkerchiefs, place them separately on a clean paper until they are thoroughly dried out. If piled while still damp they will steam and be wrinkled.

A good substitute for cream in coffee: Beat up the yolk of an egg with a teaspoonful of sugar and a very little water, divide it among the cups before pouring in the hot coffee.

Using the Fork

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My husband insists that our boy should use his fork in his left hand and not change back to his right hand after his food is cut. Please let me know if he is correct? I use my fork in my left hand, but I am left-handed.

A. R.

If the boy is being taught to hold his knife in his right hand and his fork in his left hand, and then not to put his knife down and transfer the fork to the right hand, this is correct, the form used by all well-bred people abroad and many people here. However, the other way of eating, the fork-shifting manner of eating, is just as correct in this country.

That is as I have said many times in this column, there are two methods of eating, the fork-shifting method and the non-fork-shifting method. And we may choose either we prefer. I prefer the non-fork-shifting method, because I don't like all the extra motions and the fussiness of transferring the fork to the right hand.

The boy should not. I wish to emphasize, eat with his fork in the left hand unless he holds his knife in the right hand, the knife as an aid to the fork. Also he should be taught to lay both silverpieces down often on the plate, so that he will not give the effect of haste and of non-interest in his surroundings.

Contract Bridge -:-

OFFICIAL SYSTEM As Adopted by Leading Authorities

By E. V. SHEPARD

Demand Overcalls

An overcall is a bid made over a declaration of either partner or opponent. Players should have clearly in mind just what bids are simple overcalls and which bids obligate partner's response. If you have already bid, your partner's declaration in another suit made one trick higher than required, either to overcall your contract or to overcall an intervening declaration, is a demand bid requiring your response. For example, if you have opened the bidding with 1-heart, your partner's jump to 3-clubs, whether second hand has interjected a bid of 1-spade or has passed, announces game expectations and obligates you to again bid, unless fourth hand bids (say 3-diamonds) before it becomes your turn to respond. An intervening bid removes your obligation to respond to your partner's demand.

If you have not bid, your partner's trump declaration of one trick higher than required to overcall an adverse bid does not demand your response. Even if you have opened the bidding, your partner's no-trump bid of one trick higher than needed is never a demand that you respond; it is only a strong invitation to do so in case you have greater values than disclosed.

The reason why 3-clubs by your partner, over 1-spade, is a demand in case you have opened contracting, and is not a demand if you have passed or in case the player at your partner's right has dealt and bid 1-spade, is logical. The opening bidder discloses not less than 2½ quick tricks by his opening declaration. If you show that amount of high honor strength, whether or not your bid is overcalled, your partner can closely tell whether or not game should result at some make. But if your opponent has opened contracting, showing at least 2½ quick tricks, your partner may find you strengthless, in which case forcing a bid from you in that way may turn out badly.

If your partner thinks that game should result from a declaration forced from you, when an opponent has opened the bidding, he has a better method of discovering what you hold than by making an unnecessarily high overcall of the adverse make; he may make an informatory double, thus holding down contracting and at the same time allowing you to let the bid doubled stand for a penalty in case you happen to be very strong in the doubled suit.

Suppose that you have opened bidding with 1-heart, that second hand has overcalled with 1-spade, and that your partner has bid 3-clubs; what you should respond is in each case indicated with your holdings shown below:

Bid 3-Hearts
♠ 4 ♥ A-K-J-9-7 ♣ 8-6-4 ♦ K-J-5-3

Bid 3-Diamonds
♠ 4 ♥ A-K-9-7 ♣ 8-6-4-2 ♦ A-Q-J-3

Bid 3-No Trumps
♥ A-Q ♥ A-J-10-7 ♣ 8-6-4 ♦ A-Q-9-8

Bid 5-Clubs
♠ 4 ♥ A-10-8-6-4 ♣ K-J-9-7 ♦ A-Q-J

How to Keep Well

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

Value of Reconstructive Surgery in Paralysis

Infantile paralysis is a disease that has taxed the intelligence of modern medicine. Its effect, may be pitiful, because it sometimes leaves the patient in a crippled condition.

Dr. Copeland

This disease goes through three stages. First is the acute illness, next is the stage of repair, and then the third, the chronic stage.

It is during the stage of repair, which usually lasts about two years, that permanent deformities may be prevented. Sometimes this can be done by the use of suitable apparatus. The muscles that have not been completely paralyzed should be strengthened by proper muscle training.

At the end of this time it is important that plans be made for permanent relief of the remaining disability. It is here that "reconstructive surgery" plays an important part. Experience has shown, however, that such surgery is usually more successful in older patients than in the very young.

For this reason, it has been advised that more conservative measures, treatment by muscular development, be continued in small children until they reach the age of 10 or 12 years. If the patient is getting along with braces and is satisfied to continue wearing them, a radical operation can be postponed.

In infantile paralysis an operation is not intended to cure the disease, of course. Its purpose is to overcome the disability, or to prevent any further injury to the body. The surgeon attempts to improve the working power of the impaired machinery. Often the only operation needed is upon the tendon or muscle which has become permanently paralyzed.

After infantile paralysis, a common defect is the condition known as "drop foot." This is due to paralysis of one of the muscles extending down to the foot. By means of a simple operation, the tendon of the diseased muscle is moved to that of a healthy muscle. In that way the tendency of the foot to drop is quickly overcome.

Other similar operations have been advised to correct other actual deformities of muscles and tendons. Not all operations have been entirely successful, but in the majority of cases reported there has been tremendous improvement.

N. Y. GANGSTERS SLAY 3 MORE

NEW YORK, Nov. 23. (AP.)—Three more New York gangsters have died in the way gangsters die.

The body of John (Jackie) Lynch, 26, was found yesterday propped against a high board fence in the Bronx. A few feet away, sprawled grotesquely in the gutter, was the body of Michael J. Ahearn, 26. Each had been shot in the back, the gang way.

Sixteen hours later, in a downtown street, police found the body of a third murder victim, Jerry Gerrado, 35. He was identified as a liquor runner. Gerrado, like Lynch and Ahearn, had been killed, police said, in the "on the spot" manner from which gang killers so seldom vary.

Lynch and Ahearn were listed by police as members of the Rae beer and liquor running mob. The possibility that the disappearance of Ahearn's wife two weeks ago had something to do with the killings was not overlooked by police.

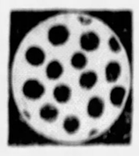
"I want to tell you — that red-blood-cells are the very foundation of sturdy health"

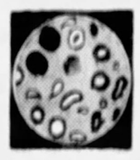
Why you should be interested in your Blood Count

It is important to know that the red blood cells are the ships that sail on the blood stream and carry nourishment and oxygen to all parts of the body; they feed and build muscles and tissues, fight poisons, [illegible] disease.

When the number of red blood cells is materially reduced, normal vitality ensues and the system becomes more susceptible to the invasion of various diseases. It is [illegible] to health and physical well being to keep the red blood cell count up to normal.



(Left) Microscopic view of healthy red blood cells. The blood stream should contain about 5,000,000 of these cells to the cubic millimeter. They carry nourishment and oxygen to every part of the body, they also remove impurities from the tissues.



(Right) Weak red blood cells—only 60 per cent of normal strength—that lack the power to resist infection and disease or to rebuild cells and to carry away the impurities. Such a condition is often responsible for [illegible] weakness, paleness, sallow complexion, pimples and boils.

Don't let them count you out!

[illegible] let's pause a moment to give those vital red cells the consideration they deserve. They mean so much for better health and happiness.

It is not fair to expect one to like work or to enjoy play with a "lowered" blood count.

Time drags when we don't feel well . . . the mind just won't function . . . melancholy and the blues overtake us.

So often the reason is simple—that good body of ours has "run down" under the strain of our way of living . . . pressure of work and worry.

If this is your trouble, why not take steps to overcome it—remembering that a "tired feeling" may be a warning . . . so are pimples, boils and paleness. A general run-down condition means a lack of normal resistance to infection and disease. A lagging appetite often leads to underweight and ill health.

You cannot be low in strength and be happy—let's be happy. Don't let them count you out" when more red blood-cells will give you that New Strength to "carry on."

For generations S.S.S. as a tonic has been helping people gain New Strength, better health and happiness. Its successful record of over 100 years in restoring strength and vitality to the blood surely warrants your giving it a good trial.

You should know that S.S.S. has the distinct advantage of being composed of fresh vegetable medicinal ingredients in concentrated form . . . it is Mother Nature's formula.

Wallace Reid's Young Son, Billie, May Appear On Talk Screen

By HARRISON CARROLL

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 23.

If Carl Laemmle, Jr., has his way, Billie Reid, son of Wallie, will don makeup and appear in a Universal picture.

Billie, now 15 years old and bearing a marked resemblance to his famous father, has satisfactorily passed a test for a role in "Some of the Legion," a story of life in a boys' military academy.

As I write this Universal is trying to get in communication with him and with his mother. They are willing to offer a contract for the picture and want an option on Billie's future services.

Victor McLaglen

In case the contract is signed Billie may have to leave Fairfax High School, where he is on the football team. It is Universal's plan to shoot a good deal of the picture at Culver Military Academy. Billie probably would have to make the location trip.

VIC IS SENTIMENTAL

Though he is an ex-prizefighter and is a portrayer of hard-boiled roles on the screen, Victor McLaglen has a sentimental streak in him. It comes out in the Garden of Friendship which Vic is planning on his seven-acre estate in Flintridge. Every flower, shrub or tree in this garden is being donated by a friend of the star. In return, they get their name engraved on a copper plate at the base of the plant. Some who already have said it with flowers are Irving Thalberg, Marlene Dietrich, Josef von Sternberg, Doug and Mary, Lew Cody, Carl Laemmle, Jr., Winfield Sheehan, Allan Dwan, Janet Gaynor and Flissa Landi.

LATEST GOSSIP

Bebe Daniels hasn't had a picture taken with her baby yet. She was waiting until she could get her hair back to its real color and then she had to hurry to San Francisco to rehearse for "The Last of Mrs. Cheney"... Roland Brown was in South Bend Saturday for the U. S. C.-Notre Dame game. The Hollywood department stores are selling dozens of those new gadgets to iron wrinkles out of the face. But Jay Strouse remarks what Hollywood really needs is a magic checkbook. And who doesn't? ... Mrs. Alexander, grandmother of Blanche Sweet, will join Blanche in Washington to celebrate her seventy-second birthday. The day is December 8. After that, Blanche is going on another vaudeville tour. ... Will Rogers is now heading for Manchuria to report war doings. ... After six months in vaudeville Fifi Dorsay is arriving here Sunday. She will remain over for the holidays.

IN THE NEWS

Now that her contract with Universal is finished, Lois Wilson is receiving numerous offers from other companies. She has just signed to play one of the leads in "Old Man Minick," the Edna Ferber story in which Chili Bales stars for Warners. ... Others in this cast include Walter Catlett and Ralfe Harolde. Archie Mayo is directing.

Plays, Players and By-Play

By WILLIAM J. LEWIS

"The Wonder Bar," musical novelty with a lot of specialties and a title borrowed from a cabaret entertainment in Vienna, comes to the Alvin tonight, the cast headed by Al Jolson and Claire Winsor. There will be no Wednesday matinee, afternoon performances being limited to Thanksgiving Day and Saturday.

Small Timer, peering cautiously out into the audience, says he does have a will of his own, but the missus is its executioner.

* * *

Fred Allen, Clifton Webb and Libby Holman, "Three's a Crowd," in other words, open in the Nixon tonight. Matinees will be Wednesday, Thursday and Saturday.

The succeeding attraction in the Sixth avenue house will be "Private Lives," with Otto Kruger and Marie Kennedy in the principal roles. Thursday will be the first day to box-office it.

* * *

Small Timer says the gal who thinks the boy friend has no business kissing her should remember he puts pleasure first.

* * *

George Arliss will have Violet Heming opposite him in the Warner Brothers production of "The Man Who Played God." ... Helen Chandler, after two years on the screen, will return to the stage soon in "The Soul Of Henry Dewlip," by Benn Levy, author of "Mrs. Moonlight," recently seen here. ... "Alias the Doctor" is the title of the next picture to star Richard Barthelmess. ... "Minnie the Moocher" will be the tag of a short film to be made by Cab Calloway and his orchestra. ... Lionel Atwill will play his original stage role in the film version of "The Silent Witness," to be made by Fox.

Small Timer says the difference between honest opinion and professional advice is the lawyer's profit.

Norman Foster Writes Stage Drama

Norman Foster, screen actor and husband of Claudette Colbert, is co-author with Harry Hamilton of "Savage Rhythm," a play of the South, which John Golden plans to produce shortly.

Screen Puts Huston in Racket

By CLARENCE E. GRUNDISH

"The Ruling Voice" is the current attraction in the Warner. It is a picture that puts the racketeers into the produce and milk business. It is an awful strain on the imagination.

Walter Huston is the star. He heads a big system that collects a cash tribute from big and little businesses everywhere. If you want to build a house, deliver milk or sell bananas, you better meet Mr. Huston's demands.

However, there are some persons in the film who are so old-fashioned that they still think it's a free country and they refuse to pay. Then Mr. Huston just smiles nicely but meaningly and you know that someone's place is going to be wrecked. You gather the idea, too, that sometimes a body is found somewhere. This we presume leaves it up to the undertaker to contribute.

Anyway, the system grows so large that it gets beyond control of the ruling voice of the master-minded Huston. And when his daughter deserts him upon learning what a racketeer he is, he has a change of heart and wants to become a respected banker.

But it isn't easy. The system turns upon the master, like the proverbial dog that bites the hand that feeds it. And it's finale time in the Warner.

The cast includes Dudley Digges, Loretta Young, David Manners and Doris Kenyon. Both Mr. Huston and Mr. Digges do good work. But the melodrama they have to work with isn't so much.

Thrills Back In Films

With R. K. O. hiring all the stunt aviators to work in "The Lost Squadron," Warner Brothers is out to hire all the famous racing drivers to appear in "The Roar of the Crowd." Director Howard Hawks already has secured Harry Hartz, Ralph De Palma and Leon Duray.

The cast of this picture has been juggled several times. Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., expected to get it but James Cagney was the final choice. Others will be Dorothy Mackaill and Walter Huston. Joan Blondell, once announced, now is out because she won't finish her current film in time.

The company will go to Indianapolis for the racing scenes, which are to include some dangerous spills.

Dukes Join in Upsets. Bohren Breaks Streak.
Booth's Winning Kick. Big Cut in Home Runs.

TROJAN FIGHT MARVEL OF GAMENESS

IT HAD TO happen sometime that Notre Dame would fall. It was inevitable under the law of average that the day would come when things would go wrong for the Irish and go right for an opponent to such an extent as to accomplish the breaking of the South Benders' sensational winning streak. But that this would come to pass in a game in which Notre Dame was leading, 14 to 0, going into the fourth quarter, and was still leading by one point with only a single minute to play, no fan would have believed if it had not actually occurred.

Gaius Shaver

That was the most remarkable feature of Southern California's great 16 to 14 victory—the courageous uphill fight which the Trojans made to achieve it against seemingly hopeless odds, with Johnny Baker's story-book field goal in the final fleeting moments giving just the needed margin on top of Gaius Shaver's two brilliant touchdowns. It took hearts of oak to make that fight. Beating Notre Dame would have been a great achievement in itself, but coming from so far behind to do it at such a late stage made it one of the standouts of football history and ranked the Trojans with the gamest as well as with the most powerful teams that ever stepped on a gridiron.

THERE IS NO question that the victory was earned or that Southern California deserved to win. The coast stars accomplished the greater part of the job when their forwards held their own with the hitherto unmatched Irish line and they accomplished the remainder with a ball-carrying attack which Hunk Anderson's gridders were unable to stop.

And it can't be said that one-man or two-man play beat the Irish, as there were eleven men in that play, just as there were in everything else the far westerners accomplished in their wonderful rally at the last ditch. As for the late stage of its making, too, the last minute is just as much a part of a football game as the other 59. In every respect, the Trojans won on their merits. You can't give them too big a hand.

WHILE NOTRE DAME'S followers naturally regret to see their favorites stumble with a step of a third straight undefeated season, there is nothing but honor for the team in defeat.

No coaches or players can go on winning forever. They would have to be more than human. In going as far as they did, unbeaten in 26 consecutive games, facing practically every week through three seasons a major battle that called for their best, and with every foe specially pointed for them, the Irish wrote a football chapter that will not soon be paralleled.

WHAT ABOUT THOSE little Dukes on a day of football surprises? Elmer Layden's lads contributed one of the big upsets of a staggering afternoon with a 13-to-7 victory over their huge foemen from North Dakota, previously undefeated and boasting a tie with Oregon. All season the Bluffites have proved greatest when the odds were heavily against them, but they surpassed all of their earlier performances Saturday in humbling the giants from the Northwest. Look out Carnegie! There's trouble brewing for the Skibos in that big charity game on December 5. What a scrap that ought to be!

Albie Booth

IF THEY STOP him from one angle he breaks out in another. Little Albie Booth couldn't get loose for any of his sensational touchdown runs for Yale Saturday, the third straight year he had been held in check by Harvard, but he never did a bigger job in his colorful career than when he dropkicked a field goal three minutes before the finish, to beat the Crimson, 9 to 8, in the fiftieth annual duel and erase Harvard from the unbeaten list.

It was an odd turn of the football campaign that just when critics and fans had begun to mourn field-goal kicking as a lost art, two of the most important games in years should be decided in the same afternoon by that very play.

IN VIEW OF this latest evidence of the value of the goal from field, fans will now be more than ever at a loss to understand why the coaches do not pay greater attention to developing men for the specialty of kicking the three-pointers.

There was a time before the posts were moved back from the goal line, when field-goal kicking reached such heights that Trafford, Eckersall and Brickley each booted five in a game. This year drop and placement booting have fallen off so greatly that even in kicking the extra points after touchdown the failures appear to have outnumbered the successful tries.

NOT ALL OF Saturday's grid surprises were listed under the fall of the mighty. There was one that might be called the rise of the lowly. While Notre Dame, Harvard, Fordham and North Dakota were being defeated for the first time, another college was scoring its first victory in three seasons. The Hobart worm finally turned, and the team coached by Jakie Bohren, former Pitt player, broke a losing streak of greater length than Notre Dame's winning drive. After 27 straight defeats, Hobart beat University of Rochester, 13 to 7, for its first victory since it downed Buffalo, 28 to 0, on November 17, 1928. In scoring his first victory since he became coach at Hobart in 1929, Bohren defeated another former Pitt star, as Rochester is coached by Tom Davies.

A COMPARISON OF home run hitting in the two major baseball circles for 1931 is one bit of evidence which President William Harridge may offer at the American League meeting next month in support of his belief that it might be wise to adopt the National League ball.

As shown by figures published at the close of the season, the American League for the first time in many years had more home runs than the National. It's a condition not relished by some of the junior loopers as reflecting against their league in comparisons of ball, quality of pitching and size of parks.

THE HOME RUN figures on the whole are gratifying to the magnates of both leagues as proving the departure of the rabbit ball, the result of the campaign waged by Barney Dreyfuss, John McGraw and others to end the four-base burlesque.

Only 1,069 homers were made in the two circuits in 1931 as compared with 1,565 in 1930, a decrease of 496, or a shade above 31 per cent. The National fell off from 892 to 493, a reduction of close to 45 per cent, and the American dropped from 673 to 576, a cut of about 15 per cent. Bob Meusel's 33 in 1925 was the only top mark in the last eight years lower than the leading individual total of 46, at which Babe Ruth and Lou Gehrig were tied in 1931.

William Harridge

THE YANKEES AND Browns, both in Harridge's league, were the only clubs in either of the major bodies that did not show a decrease in homers as compared with 1930, the Yanks rising from 152 to 155 and the Browns from 75 to 76. The Giants dropped from 143 to 101, the Cubs from 171 to 48, the Cards from 104 to 60, the Phils from 126 to 81, the Dodgers from 122 to 71, the Reds from 74 to 21, the Pirates from 86 to 41, the Braves from 66 to 34, the A's from 125 to 118, the Indians from 72 to 71, the Senators from 87 to 49, the Tigers from 82 to 43, the Red Sox from 47 to 37 and the White Sox from 63 to 27.

George Panka, Homestead's fighting Finn slave, heavyweight, has had enough ups and downs in his brief fistic career to qualify him for a job in the Elevator Operators' Union.

Let's sketch his career briefly. He started out as an amateur, had a few bouts and then hammered his way to Tulsa, Okla., where he joined up with Babe Hunt, the Ponca City part-Indian heavyweight, and indulged in a few bouts on the side and then returned home to startle folks around here with a series of speedy knockout victories which attracted immediate attention to him and had the managers and promoters falling over themselves in an effort to sign him.

Tony Galento George Panka

BOXES TOM HEENEY

Come then two bouts with Long Tom Williams, the Negro now his sparring partner, at Motor Square Garden, which tested him for the first time, and a series with Harry Williams, in which he seemed to rob the latter of all of his good boxing form. Then followed bouts with Knute Hansen and Frankie Wine, and a splendid battle with Tom Heeney, the Australian veteran, at the Meyers Bowl, when they turned away fans by the thousands.

Panka, fast and active for a big fellow, with better than ordinary boxing skill and a fair punch, seemed on the threshold of getting somewhere and then slumped to lose by successive knockouts to K. O. Christner, Emmett Rocco and Ike McFowler. He suddenly appeared to be all washed up. Discouraged, he took himself away again, this time to Cleveland, where he dubbed around. Then he joined the camp of Max Schmeling, the world champion, preparing at Conneaut Lake, Pa., for his bout in defense of his title against Young Stribling at Cleveland last July. He attracted a lot of attention in the workouts and was given a place on the championship card, losing to clever Frankie Cawley, stablemate of Tommy Loughran.

BEATS ACE CLARK

Then he came back home and after a long delay was given a bout with Roy (Ace) Clark, giant Negro of Philadelphia, who had boxed Primo Carnera and other big-timers. They met in the Meyers Bowl and Panka was a handy winner. He hasn't done anything since except to keep in training and tonight, in the 10-round main bout at Motor Square Garden, he makes a fresh start against one Tony Galento, of Orange, N. J., a roly-poly 230-pounder with a punch that has flattened a majority of his opponents.

Panka is a man of few words. In victory or defeat he chooses to let his deeds speak for themselves. All he will say about tonight's fight is that he is willing to gamble his end on himself, which reflects considerable confidence in view of the fact that the pickings have been lean for the big fellow and he needs whatever he can get out of the fight game.

Galento arrived in town yesterday and said he regarded this

DUKES' VICTORY AIDS BENEFIT

The greatest gainer through Duquesne University's game victory stand against the hitherto undefeated North Dakota University Flickertails at Forbes Field last Saturday is the post-season benefit game between the Dukes and Carnegie Tech, to be played at the Stadium Saturday afternoon of next week. Proceeds of this battle will go to the relief of the unemployed of Allegheny County.

Carnegie's players, enjoying a day off from gridiron toil, sat in the stands and watched Coach Elmer Layden's charges trail, 7-0, at the end of the first half and fight their way back to a 13-7 victory over a rugged foe, and went away from the scene realizing that they have a struggle on their hands in the charity game.

Tickets for the big special feature will go on sale tomorrow at the usual agencies and others which will be arranged at the popular prices of $1 for reserved seats, $1.50 for box seats, 50 cents for end seats and special rates for students in the public and parochial high schools.

Announcement was made today that a special souvenir program will be prepared for the game, to be edited by Max Hannum and George Kelly, respectively publicity directors of Tech and the Dukes.

The edition, which will contain interesting reading matter relative to the participants who are meeting for the first time in the history of the two institutions, will be sold for 10 cents each. The program will be printed without cost to the benefit committee and all advertising monies and the sum received from the sale of the program will be given the Allegheny County Emergency Association Committee.

SPORT VIGNETTES

Just what manner of a man is this Howard Harding Jones, coach of the University of Southern California Trojans, who halted the winning streak of the Notre Dame eleven at South Bend last Saturday? . . . Well, let's see . . . He was born in Excello, O., in August, 1886, the son of Thomas A. and Adelaide Harding Jones, and is a brother of the celebrated T. A. D. (Tad) Jones, former Yale coach, still a familiar figure in the football ranks as a writer on the sport, his articles appearing regularly in your favorite newspaper.

Howard attended Middletown High School and then went to Philips Exeter Academy and then to Yale University, where he was graduated in 1908. . . . He was a member of the Philips Exeter and Yale football teams that enjoyed undefeated seasons in 1903-04 and 1905-07, respectively. . . . He has coached at Syracuse, Yale, Ohio State, Iowa, Duke and Southern California, and probably has turned out more all-America players than any other coach in the business, the list totaling 14, with more to come from this year's fine Trojan array.

The all-America players who have performed under the direction of Jones include Aubrey Devine and Gordon Locke, at Iowa; Bill Hoar, at Syracuse, and Mort Kaer, Morley Drury, Jesse Hibbs, Francis Tappaan and Ernie Pinckert, at Southern Cal. . . . In one year at Yale he had no less than six men on Walter Camp's all-America eleven, among them the immortal Ted Coy. . . . He has coached teams through perfect seasons at Yale, twice at Iowa and once at Southern California.

Quiet and retiring almost to the point of self-effacement, this wizard coach, Jones, also is anything but extravagant in his praise of the good work of his players . . . He probably told them he was "satisfied" after they came back from trailing, 14-0, at the start of the fourth quarter to defeat the Irish, 16-14, for the biggest upset of the season last Saturday . . . His subdued, gentlemanly qualities come from a cultured background and fine breeding . . .

Like most successful coaches, he stresses discipline and a fundamental knowledge of the game. . . . Charley Paddock, the great sprinter, says of him that he is hard to know, but when he gives you his hand in friendship you never will be sorry to know him . . . Which just about sums up the true measure of a man.

Jones may lack the inspired spark and color of the late Knute Rockne, but there is no question that he gets results in his own quiet, individual manner . . . What he lacks in personality he makes up in other ways . . . During his six years at Southern California he has turned in 56 victories, as against only nine defeats and two ties, four of the defeats having been administered by Rockne's teams . . . And he was the last man to defeat the Irish before they began their spectacular string of 25 victories and one tie in 1928 and then came back and halted that streak . . . In six games with Notre Dame his Trojans won two and lost four, but three of those four defeats were suffered by the margin of a missed try-for-goal after touchdown, the score being 13-12 twice and 7-6 once . . . The other defeat was that 27-0 setback last year . . . Southern California won its games by 27-13 in 1928 and 16-14 this year.

When he took up the coaching job at Southern California, Jones told the alumni that he would not guarantee his charges would win all of their games, but that he would give the university a team of which it need never be ashamed . . . He meant he would have a team of fighting young gentlemen at all times—and I leave it to you if he hasn't succeeded.—HARRY KECK.

OTIS CRANDALL LIKELY PILOT

By CHARLES J. DOYLE

The report that Coach Otis Crandall, of the Pirates, is leading the big field in the competition for the Buccaneer managerial post is stronger today than when it was exclusively published Friday in the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

Crandall, it is stated quite reliably, soon will leave his California home on an eastward trek which may bring him to West Baden, Ind., where next week will be held the annual meeting of the minor leagues.

In the event that Crandall attends this West Baden pow wow, it is certain he will proceed with Owner Barney Dreyfuss to Chicago, where the major league and joint meetings are scheduled in that sequence.

This writer knows that Crandall, before leaving Pittsburgh last month, left impressions with some intimate friends that he might negotiate with Owner Dreyfuss regarding the managerial job. Also it is known that Dreyfuss and the coach had several private conferences before Crandall went on his way rejoicing.

The Pittsburgh magnate, it is hinted, is anxious to get a new manager on the job as quickly as possible in order to expedite the numerous trades he has in view.

Adam Comorosky, Steve Swetonic and George Grantham are slated for the trading block, and naturally Dreyfuss wants to have a manager to O. K. any deals. At least, he desires advice on the important matters, and apparently he has a lot of confidence in Crandall's judgment on all baseball affairs.

Other clubs are almost as anxious for the David Harum huddles as is Barney, so that the impending sessions of the baseball men should be heavy with interesting developments.

IRISH, CRIMSON LOSE; DUKES TOP FLICKERS

By JESS CARVER

Wow! Thank goodness or heavens or something we are three grand miles away from California! Will those babies out there put it on? What do you think? Only those who have gone through a California celebration of a victory over an Eastern team (and anything on the Atlantic side of the Rose Bowl at Pasadena is considered East out there, too) can appreciate the way those West Coasters will cheer the startling triumph of Southern Cal's Trojans over Notre Dame.

If all the toasts that will be drunk to Howard Jones and his footballers, especially Baker, could be placed end to end you'd have a headache for the rest of your life and a crooked elbow with it.

Upsets and near-upsets featured Saturday's gridiron card, the upsets being headed by the triumphs of Southern California, Yale, Duquesne and Bucknell, while the near-upsets caused Lafayette, Michigan, Holy Cross, Georgetown and California to do a bit of quaking in their boots.

BAKER BIG HERO

How'd you like to have been in this fellow Baker's clogs as he stood there on the 24-yard line, 34 long yards away from the goal posts, with everything depending on the result of his try for placement? There was that powerful Notre Dame line, tensely eager to crash through and block his try. There were the 52,000 in the stands, hardly daring to breathe, the majority praying for failure, though in spite of themselves, half-hoping for success, not because it would mean the downfall of Notre Dame, but because of the game try the sturdy Trojan lineman was making.

That successful placement goal did more to help college football than anything that has happened in the game this year. It is not good for an individual, or for a team to win too often. Winning with Notre Dame was becoming a habit, one that was doing the school more harm than good. The Irish will be good losers, just as they have been good winners, and they can go out now and start all over again, bring back old thrills and provide new ones.

Was it mere coincident that the two big games of the day both were decided by field goals. While Baker was kicking the Irish into the ranks of the defeated, little Albie Booth was drop-kicking Harvard into the same category. Both men came through in the final period, after playing through grueling contests.

PITT ON SPOT

The dear old Panthers are squarely on the spot right now, having attained at least a tie with any other eleven for eastern honors, the Panthers must go up against a tough, rugged foe here Thanksgiving Day in Nebraska's powerful Cornhuskers. The Huskers cracked down Iowa State Sat'day to win the Big Six title, and have not been tied or defeated since they lost to Northwestern early in the season.

Pitt has to win this game to stay up in the race. It will mean that Sutherland's men must play as good, if not better, ball as they exhibited in beating Army. They'll find in Nebraska a team with greater drive and with as rugged a first line defense and a far more alert secondary.

The Dukes looked positively noble as they upset the unbeaten North Dakota Flickertails. Outweighed, and supposedly outclassed, the Red and Blue refused to be outfought and wound up outplaying the Flickers. Bud Devenney looked like a Carideo as he directed the play of the locals in that stirring 42-yard touchdown march that tied the score. Capt. Mike Ferrera gave an all-America exhibition of guard playing, and I'm not kiddin', either.

FLICKERS LETHARGIC

North Dakota had the plays and the stuff, but was lackadaisical in execution. The team looked uninspired, and I'm of the opinion the Flickers took the affair too lightly. The line didn't click as it should have to protect the backfield, which ran its plays from a very close formation. Time after time, the ball carriers were nabbed from behind or were slowed down with disastrous effect by jammed-up interference.

Carnegie Tech and the Panthers looked on as the Dukes won and counted the time jolly well spent. The Techs play the Dukers December 5 in a charity tussle.

Four Girl Athletes Hurt in Bus Crash

SIDNEY, O., Nov. 23.—(AP.)—Four Chicago women, members of the International Women's Athletic Association, were brought to a hospital here yesterday after being seriously injured in a bus accident on the Dixie highway, south of here.

Those hurt were Bonco Bliss, Beatrice Mack, Joy Sinders and Isabella Smith. Miss Sinders was injured internally, physicians said. All were registered as about 22 years of age. The bus skidded off the highway and overturned.

COACH OF IRISH WRITES OF DEFEAT

By HEARTLEY ANDERSON
Notre Dame Coach

NOTRE DAME, Ind., Nov. 23.—I have nothing but the highest praise for Coach Howard Jones and his Southern California football team which on Saturday defeated Notre Dame here 16 to 14 for the first defeat suffered by the Irish in three years.

A team that is losing 14 to 0 as the fourth quarter begins and comes back to win deserves all the credit that I or anybody else can give, and, because of its victory, I take off my hat to it.

The strong finish, which netted the small margin of victory, was due, I think, to the excellent generalship of Orv Mohler as well as his line-plunging. He seemed able to detect holes in the line and run through them with much success.

PRAISES SHAVER

Gus Shaver comes in for much praise for his work. The big quarterback accounted for considerable yardage through our line particularly on spinners and reverse plays. He accounted for the second Trojan touchdown on a lateral pass similar to the one Notre Dame used in scoring its second touchdown.

The real cause for the defeat, I think, was the letdown after the 14 points had been rolled up.

As a coincidence, the same thing happened in the game with Southern California in 1929, at Soldier Field, when Russ Saunders ran through the entire Notre Dame team with the kickoff after a Notre Dame score. Notre Dame had let down then as today, with the result that Southern California scored.

GLAD STRAIN IS ENDED

Southern California really beat us on one play, a forward pass from Shaver to Hall which the giant tackle caught deep in our territory. Sheckelski was assigned to cover Hall, and was covering him like a hawk, but because of his short stature, was unable to bat down the pass, which the lanky Hall snared high in the air.

This play seemed to pick the Trojans up out of despair. In other words, it gave them a new lease on life and from then on they were unstoppable.

On the whole, we are rather glad the ice is broken and the winning streak is ended. It is a terrific strain for any team to go on winning and winning week after week. It is too much pressure in the immature boys and too much of a strain on the coaches.

Our boys go into every ball game hoping and playing to win. That was our objective on Saturday, but it just wasn't our day. However, in defeat, much consolation is derived from knowing that it took a team considered by many experts the best in the land today to break our three-year string.

NATIONAL LEAGUE
LAST NIGHT'S RESULTS

Chicago	4—Detroit
N. Y. Americans	2—Montreal

DETROIT, Nov. 22.—(AP.)—Pittsburgh's Yellow Jackets apparently had their first International League hockey victory tucked away last night, but the Detroit Olympics, led by their playing manager, George Hay, came to life late in the game, and tied the score, 3 to 3, with 35 seconds to play in the final period. Neither team scored in the overtime session.

Matte, Halliday and Locking scored for Pittsburgh before the Olympics could get their teamwork organized. McCabe got the first Olympic goal, late in the second period. Peters scored early in the third, and Hay's tying goal came just before the whistle ended the regulation time.

MAY PROTEST GAME

The use of more than 13 players, Hay said, is contrary to the rules of the league. Pittsburgh, he said, had 14 players in uniform, all of whom appeared in the game. He did not say when he would offer the protest, which would have to be investigated and passed upon by the International League's board of governors. The lineup:

Berlett	R D	Peters
Fraser	L D	Rockburn
Rodden	C	Herberts
Arbour	L W	McCabe
Ingram	R W	Steele

Pittsburgh scores—Holmes, Fields, Gregg, Proudlock, Halliday, White, Locking, Matte.

REID DENIES PROTEST

Reports that Detroit might protest last night's International League hockey game with Pittsburgh are erroneous, Coach Charley Reid said as he returned home with his Yellow Jackets today.

"I talked the matter over with George Hay, Detroit manager, before the game," Reid said, "and we agreed that each team might use 14 men. There will be no protest."

HAWKS TOP MAROONS

CHICAGO, Nov. 23.—(AP.)—Chicago's Blackhawks caught the Montreal Maroons flatfooted in the first period of the National League match last night, scored three goals, and finished up with a 4-to-2 victory.

STARS BEAT LONDON

SYRACUSE, Nov. 23.—(AP.)—The Syracuse Stars scored their first victory of the season last night with a 2-to-0 decision over the London Tecumsehs.

The game was rough and fast all the way, and most of the time under control of the Stars' faster and smoother offense.

Syracuse		London
Miller	G	Stuart
Hughes	R D	Hurley
Teasdale	L D	Hicks
Waite	C	Carrigan
Martin	R W	Reinikka
Darvin	L W	Quackenbush

Scores: Syracuse Padden, Bellefeuille. Home, Pellegrin, Savage, Dimmilow, Tomlinson, Gosh, Laughlin, Townsend, Pettinger. Sevens, Hurst. Referee, Jerry LaFlamme. First period: No score. Penalties, Quackenbush 2, Hughes, McBride. Second period: 1, Bellefeuille (Home), 14:05. Penalties, Gosh, Holmes. Third period: 2, Martin (Waite), 1:35. Penalties, Home, Pellegrin, Reinikka, Townsend.

HEC KILREA INJURED

NEW YORK, Nov. 23.—(INS.)—Out of the miniature war waged last night between the New York Americans hockey squad and the Detroit Falcons, Hec Kilrea emerged today with his eyesight at stake. Normie Himes' stick poked the left eye of the Detroit forward and it was feared he might lose the sight of the optic.

The star-spangled outfit took the game, 2 to 1, after it had climaxed in fisticuffs between Young, of Detroit, and Lamb, of New York.

JOHNNY BAKER, WHOSE FIELD GOAL BEAT NOTRE DAME

Two major upsets marked the football games of Saturday. Notre Dame's 16-14 defeat by Southern California, and Yale's 3-0 upset of Harvard. Harvard almost scored on the opening kickoff, when Crickard took a lateral pass from Capt. Barry Wood, the receiver (pictured being tackled) near his own goal and raced to the Yale eight-yard line before being tackled. Field goals decided both games in the closing minutes.

UPSETS ROCK GRID WORLD

North Dakota's general attitude did not make a hit with those looking on, few as they were. I've always burnt up at two things . . . to wit:

There is much cheering on the campuses at Geneva, Bucknell, Georgetown, West Virginia Wesleyan and West Virginia today, to say nothing of St. Vincent. Geneva took down the Tri-State Conference and Class B titles, Wesleyan, with Cliff Battles leading the way, romped over unbeaten Allegheny. Bucknell ended Fordham's victory string and St. Vincent, the underpup, cracked the powerful New River aggregation.

GROVE CITY WINS

Grove City took Thiel with a resounding smack and West Virginia landed on poor downtrodden Penn State. Wash-Jeff was impressive in beating Western Reserve, even though the Red Cats scored on the Presies.

Northwestern tucked the Big Ten title away by walloping Iowa, though not as badly as Pitt took the Hawkeyes. Michigan had to go all the way to nose out Minnesota. Ohio State served Zuppke his worst defeat and Purdue had but little difficulty in subduing Indiana.

Carnegie Tech sat back and looked on while all this was going on, and back in the minds of those scrappy Tartans was the idea that maybe, just maybe, they'd do a bit of upsetting themselves in New York Thursday. I'll let you all guess the meaning of that last crack . . . you and Chick Meehan.

Another upset was recorded at Geneva, N. Y., when Jakie Bohren's Hobart College team knocked off Tom Davies' Rochester University eleven, 13 to 7, Saturday. Bohren starred at Pitt and graduated in 1923, while Davies is one of the Panthers' greatest all-time satellites.

Two Omaha School Grid Stars Die

OMAHA, Nov. 23.—(AP.)—Allan Wake, 16, fullback on the St. Edward (Neb.) High School football team, died here yesterday as the result of an injury suffered a month ago in a game with Fullerton (Neb.) High School.

Wake was the second St. Edward player to die of injuries in the past three days. Friday, William Weed, 18, suffered a fractured skull in a game with Osceola (Neb.) High School and died that night at St. Edward.

St. Edward school authorities announced football would not be included in the school's activities in the future unless parents of eligible players voted for reinstatement of the game.

ROONEYS, BURNS CONFERENCE GRID VICTORS

By TOM BIRKS

Warm breezes fanned the followers of the two outstanding independent grid tussles yesterday. The James P. Rooneys, playing to a large crowd at Newell, W. Va., won their final conference game, making its eight straight in league football, by a 6-to-0 triumph over East Liverpool. The Dan Burns Firemen nosed out West View, 7 to 6, in a well-played game at West View Park.

The only score of the Rooney-East Liverpool tilt came in the third period. The Potters had played splendidly, outplaying the champions. With Jimmy Rooney on the side lines, his successor, Franklin Hood, was forced to punt. The Pottery safety man received the kick on his own three-yard line, slipped and fumbled, and Johnny Rooney recovered.

The Big Green machine promptly took advantage of the slip and carried the ball over. Hood hitting through the line in a couple of plays. The kick for extra point by Hood went wide.

FAIL TO TALLY

The Potters, playing hard three times were in scoring position but in vain. Once on the five-yard line, they fumbled. Again the champions held for downs. As the game finished, the pigskin again was on the Rooney six-yard mark.

Schaeffer, East Liverpool end, played a brilliant game and his catching of forward passes was easily the best exhibition of the conference season.

At West View, the Firemen played great football in the second period. Stanley Berkman went over from the seven-yard line and Whitey Dummer kicked the extra point.

West View retaliated in the third period, but a lucky break decided the touchdown. Architect, standing on his 3-yard line, hurled a pass good for 30 yards. Berkman jumped up to bat it down, and it fell into the waiting arms of Matt Kenny. With a clear field, Kenny streaked for the goal line. The extra point kick went wide.

The final game of the West Penn Conference season will be played at McKeesport Sunday, West View opposing the Olympics.

In Lightweight Conference contests, the Rox Rangers nosed out the Etna Sycamores, 13 to 10; the Sonny Boys beat the Papales, 16 to 0; Oakland Community and Allison Park battled to a scoreless tie, as did the Broadway Mounts and Verona, and Export bumped De Roy, 25 to 0.

TUBERS TRIUMPH

The McKeesport Olympics took the measure of their fellow townsmen, the Christy Park eleven, 18 to 0, in a torrid battle.

St. Rosalia Props, the Knapil-Westlake Odds, Evergreen Olympics, New Idea, Oakmont Panthers, Chinese Williams, St. John's Scholastics, Question Mark, Fourth Ward Rangers, Gras A. C. Fleetfoot, Homeville, Wilkinsburg Orioles, North Side Panthers, North Braddock Firemen, Valley Tigers, Beltzhoover, Trafford Indies, Union and the Kenny Club turned in victories in independent conquests.

Tie games were played between Millvale Amici and Mt. Pleasant, Spee and Crotenwith and Garfield Eagles and Homewood-Brushton.

THE COACH'S VIEWPOINT

By Howard Harpster

Today is another "Blue Monday" so far as five or six previously undefeated football teams are concerned . . . Playing their last games of the season, four teams were eliminated from the select class in games against inspired opponents last Saturday . . . Harvard, the only undefeated and untied eleven in the East, fell before Albie Booth and his Yale mates, by a 3-to-0 score, the result of a field goal by the Yale captain in the last three minutes of the game . . . Harvard previously had carried the opening kickoff of the game to the Yale eight-yard line but had lost the ball on downs to a fighting Eli line.

Howard Harpster

Carl Snavely's Bucknell Bisons came from behind in their game with the undefeated Fordham Rams and nosed out the New Yorkers in an exciting game by a one-point margin. . . . The final score was 14 to 13. . . . This victory stamps Bucknell as one of the fine teams in the East, as it is the only major eleven which hasn't suffered at least one loss. . . . Three tie games mar an otherwise perfect record.

North Dakota, another unbeaten team, fell before Elmer Layden's Dukes, being defeated 13 to 7 in a hard-fought and exciting game. . . . Trailing, 7 to 0 when the second half got under way, the Dukes made a great comeback to score twice and hand the Westerners their first . . . verse.

Allegheny's undefeated season was smashed under an avalanche of West Virginia Wesleyan touchdowns, and the Methodists fell before Cliff Battles and Company, 38 to 7 . . . Battles again demonstrated he is one of the best ball carriers in the East when he gained 320 yards from scrimmage in 31 attempts. . . . It's too bad Battles isn't on one of the better known teams, for he then would receive the recognition he deserves.

The big game of the day was played at South Bend, and 55,000 wildly excited fans witnessed one of the really great comebacks of recent years when Howard Jones' Southern California team scored 16 points in the last 14 minutes of play to overtake a Notre Dame eleven which had entered the final period with a 14-point advantage. . . . It was the first time the Irish have admitted defeat since the last game of the 1928 season and the setback interrupted a 26-game streak which included 25 victories and one scoreless tie.

Geneva College wound up its season by winning from Westminster and thereby retained the honors won last year from the smaller schools of the district . . . The game marked the passing of Capt. Slim Ransom from Geneva's football activities, and the big center ended his playing days in a blaze of glory . . . This writer rates Ransom as one of the greatest players he ever has seen at the center position, and that includes many of the best for the past six seasons . . . On a big team he would be just as outstanding as he has been at the Beaver Valley school, for he is a natural player, with an ideal build, and excels on both offense and defense.

JACKETS SIGN CLIFF BARTON

Cliff Barton, right wing who came to Pittsburgh from Port Arthur in 1929 when this city was represented in the National Hockey League and who went to Philadelphia when the local franchise was transferred to that city, will be in Yellow Jacket livery when the local skaters meet the Cleveland Indians at Duquesne Gardens Thursday night.

Cliff Barton

Barton was obtained from the New York Rangers by Coach Charley Reid yesterday. Cliff was picked up by the New York club when it was decided not to operate the Philadelphia franchise this season. He trained with the Rangers in Toronto, and has been playing for Springfield in the Canadian-American League since the season opened.

Barton came here with Bud Jarvis and the kid winga performed very creditably for the Pirates. The experience that he has acquired since 29 should make Cliff a valuable addition to the Jacket squad.

Old Man Upset, who figured so prominently in many startling setbacks registered in collegiate football over the past weekend, did not confine his activities entirely to the higher schools of learning, judging from the results of several important scholastic tilts played in Western Pennsylvania.

Featuring Saturday's upheavals in the scholastic realm was Mt. Lebanon's surprising 6-to-0 victory over Art Dahl's Jeannette High school eleven, which enabled the borough team to wind up its greatest football season in a blaze of glory.

Mt. Lebanon, the only blemish on its record a 19-6 setback at the hands of Johnny Sirdock and his Miles Bryan eleven of McKees Rocks, thus completed its season with a record of nine victories and one defeat, placing it among the leaders in local scholastic football. Bridgeville, Crafton, Braddock, South Fayette, Scottdale, Carnegie, Imperial, Dormont and Jeannette all fell before the onslaught of Coach Eddie Leavitt's powerful combine.

CONFERENCE MEMBER

What makes the Mt. Lebanon victory all the more sweeter is the fact that Jeannette is one of the 12 high schools enrolled in the Class AA Conference, the highest ranking scholastic organization in the W. P. I. A. L. ranks.

South Hills' brilliant 7-0 victory over Schenley High in a post-season game for the city scholastic championship enabled Section 11 to win its first City League title after trying for eight years. South Hills, making its seventh bid for the championship, clearly outclassed its Schenley rivals and deserved to win by a larger score.

Down at Stowe Township, Ted Marmen's Stowe eleven and its old rival, Miles Bryan High of McKees Rocks, engaged in another one of those grueling battles that has characterized all contests played between these arch-enemies and at the end of a hectic game, Johnny Sirdock and his Rox supporting cast were on the long end of an 18-13 score, the winning points being scored in the final minutes. McKees Rocks thus ended its most successful campaign with a record of six victories, one tie and one defeat, that setback coming in the opening game of the season at the hands of New Castle, 6-0.

GRAINS DECLINE SHARPLY

CHICAGO, Nov. 23. Grain prices tended sharply downward early today, influenced by a tumble in British exchange rates. The acute weakness of sterling was in turn ascribed to sales to cover payments on goods which have been rushed into Great Britain before new tariffs become effective. Opening [illegible] to [illegible] cent off, wheat afterward [illegible] December contracted at [illegible] decline, advance and subsequently receded [illegible].

Setbacks in British exchange carried the rate next to $3.65 from $3.72, and led to increased selling pressure on wheat future delivery contracts here as well as to curtailment of buying. Bears put stress also on United States Department of Agriculture reports of an increase of 38,996,000 bushels in the wheat crop of the Northern Hemisphere, bringing the total to 3,114,432,000 bushels exclusive of Russia. The change was attributed to an increase of 27,000,000 bushels in Canada and 12,000,000 in France.

Favorable Trade Factors Still Accumulating

By GEORGE B. SNYDER

EVIDENCES OF ACTUAL INCREASE in business volume have been slight during the past month, but indications of improvement in some of the basic factors which will have an influence on future business, are accumulating.

Gains in industrial activity have been at isolated points and have not had any pronounced bearing on the total productivity of the country. It would be unusual for a marked upturn to take place this late in the year when business almost invariably is undergoing a seasonal slump.

But the changes in the underlying factors are of distinct importance and have been responsible for the fact that a more optimistic view is being taken towards the future.

Favorable Factors

AMONG THE DEVELOPMENTS which have been interpreted as sign posts indicating that a turn may be at hand are the following:

1. Commodity prices appear to have come to the end of their long period of decline. In some cases there have been impressive advances.

3. Money in circulation is declining. This confirms the statement that currency is being returned to its normal channels.

4. The use of Federal Reserve credit is declining. This indicates that the banks are no longer under abnormal strain.

5. Gold is being imported.

Unfavorable Factors

ON THE UNFAVORABLE SIDE may be listed the fact that the recent rally in stock prices was followed by a reaction which wiped out most of the gains. The bond market retained some of its advances but lost ground in sympathy with stocks.

Until the end of October the decline in industrial activity was still under way. The low point for the depression was reached at the end of the month. The gains in recent weeks have been too scattered to form the basis of any indefinite indication.

Unusually warm weather has alleviated the hardships of the unemployed but it has had an adverse effect on retail sales of seasonal merchandise.

It is probable that more corporations will announce dividend reductions and omissions.

Currency Fears Dispelled

FOR THE FOURTH CONSECUTIVE week the statement of the combined Federal Reserve Banks has shown increasing bank strength and greater confidence in our monetary system.

Federal Reserve credit dropped $92,000,000 in the week ended November 18. This brought the outstanding credit down to $1,972,000,000 and made the total decline during the past four weeks $266,000,000. In other words, fewer banks are finding it necessary to borrow from the Reserve System and it is no longer imperative to have an abnormal amount of currency in circulation to compensate for hoarded money. Reserve credit expanded during most of the past summer.

That the heavy withdrawals of gold from this country are over can be seen by the past three Federal Reserve statements. Gold holdings of the system gained $24,000,000 last week and have made a total gain of $83,000,000 in the past three weeks.

NEW YORK BOND MARKET

NEW YORK, Nov. 23. Bonds showed a firmer tone in active dealings today in a market that apparently had little interest for its return.

United States issues were especially weak. Dealings, carrying fractionally with them the Treasury loans showing the same sluggish moderate offerings.

Trading in the foreign issues was not heavy but the Japanese government 6's and 5's registered losses of a point each, while Brazils which were off somewhat at the opening recovered some of this loss. German bonds were fractionally higher.

Ellwood City High rose to its greatest heights to upset Ambridge High by a 13-12 score at Ambridge. Ellwood City, beaten often this season was the underdog, although it wasn't considered exactly a setup. It was the second defeat of the season suffered by Moe Rubenstein's gridders.

While McKeesport, undefeated in eight straight games, was resting for its battle with Clairton on Thanksgiving Day at Clairton, George Woodman's team was ringing up its ninth successive triumph at the expense of Duquesne, 27-0. Comish Flayed By Loughran's Manager

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 23. (INS)—Pennsylvania's State Boxing Commissioners, in trying to avoid further trouble by refusing to sanction a charity 8-round contest here between Primo Carnera and Tommy Loughran, seemed to have run into a new headache today. The biggest gate in cards came about through the reaction of Loughran's manager, Joe Smith, to the wording of the commission's ruling of Saturday, which Tommy's friends believe cast aspersions upon Loughran.

After Loughran and Smith had spent the week-end answering numerous telephone calls from Tommy's hot-headed Irish followers, Smith issued a statement today calling upon the commissioners to clarify their statement in refusing to sanction the proposed contest. He also expressed the opinion the commissioners owe an apology to Loughran and the public for the unfortunate choice of words in rejecting the proposed match.

"The commission owes it to Loughran to clear him of the implication that his services might not be 'satisfactory,' Smith said. "There is nothing in his record to indicate that he ever gives anything but his best efforts."

Tuscaloosa Issues Charity Game Defi

TUSCALOOSA, Ala., Nov. 23. (AP)—Tuscaloosa High School, undefeated for seven years in 63 games, has issued a challenge to any high school in the nation for a game November 26, 27 or 28, to be played for the benefit of charity.

Coach Al Clemens said Tuscaloosa would accept a game anywhere for actual traveling expenses, provided the receipts of the game went to charity.

POLICE DEFEAT SING SING, 13-0

OSSINING, N. Y., Nov. 23. (AP)—A policemen's football team drove home the old slogan, You Can't Win, yesterday by defeating the Sing Sing convict aggregation, 13 to 0.

It was the inmates' second game. They defeated a naval militia team last Sunday, 33 to 0, and had cherished high hopes of doing something similar to the Cops.

It was a faster, smoother outfit that donned the blue and red and faced the orange-garbed police from Port Jervis, N. Y., but the best they could muster, to the cheers of 2,300 fellow inmates in the stands, and 1,701 "outside" spectators, was not enough to get the ball beyond the enemy's posts.

W. Va., Duke Plebe Tilt Charity Affair

MORGANTOWN, W. Va., Nov. 23. Season tickets for the game have been declared void and people holding them will have to pay their way to the game, as will newspapermen and officials. It is believed at least $2,500 will be realized for the fund directed by Calvert L. Estill.

The Christmas Spirit Is Here!

SUN-TELEGRAPH DOLL LADY

And They All Want to Get Glorious

"HONEYBUNCH"

The Doll That Isn't Sold in the Stores

Read Today's Doll Lady Message:

Dear Little Girls:

The Christmas spirit is already here, I know it better than anyone else, I can tell by the demand for my dollies and the demand is already twice as great as it was at this time last year. It would seem, from the stacks of letters I am getting, that every little girl in Pittsburgh wants one of my "Honeybunch" wonder dolls. And the little girls are taking no chances this year—they're going after their Christmas dolls early.

I'm not a bit surprised because I was sure that when I came to Pittsburgh and displayed my "Honeybunches" there would be a big rush to get her. And the rush is really on—scores of "Honeybunches" have already been distributed and today I will have to send to my big doll house for another supply. Thank goodness, I am well supplied with these wonder dolls and there is no chance of any little girl being disappointed. They can all have their big, beautiful "Honeybunch" long before Christmas if they will do the simple things I ask them to do.

"Honeybunch," you know, is no ordinary doll. She's almost as tall as this newspaper is long and she has the most winsome smile and twinkling eyes that you ever saw on any baby. The eyes open and shut—she goes to sleep when you want her to. You'll fall in love with her charming, natural voice and you'll laugh with real glee when you see her use her pacifier. You'll always be proud of "Honeybunch's" clothes—dresses of dainty organdy trimmed with lace, a chic lace cap trimmed with ribbon bows, and shoes and stockings to match. Oh, I nearly forgot mentioning her real rubber panties. "Honeybunch" is as nearly unbreakable as a doll can be. Her arms and hands are made of rubber and can move just like those of a real live baby.

"Honeybunch" is a darling in every way—a marvelous playmate. I have made it unusually easy for little girls to get this marvelous doll and if you really want one, send me your name and address on the coupon in this announcement and I'll send you a letter by return mail, telling just what you'll have to do to get a "Honeybunch" all for yourself.

Don't wait! Do it now so that you can have your dolly long before Christmas. Goodbye 'till tomorrow.

Things I Never Knew Till Now

(Because they had awful teachers at P. S. 181)

That Joan of Arc was not the heroine of Orleans. It's Joan Dare—not Are or D'Arc. Just Dare, like your future, not mine.

That Wm. Tell never shot an apple off his son's head. Nor did he ever shoot a Napple off'n anybody's bean. He never existed.

That James Watt did not invent the steam engine, nor did he ever claim to have invented it. Edward Somerset, Marquis and Earl of Worcester, invented it more than a century before.

That one added to one doesn't always make two. Try adding one drop of mercury to one drop of mercury, and see what happens.

That the Bible makes no reference to Adam and Eve eating a Napple, nor to the fact that they were ousted because of one Betcha.

That Gandhi wasn't the first guy to use bedclothes for wearing apparel, at all. The Indians used blankets, you dope.

That 354 towns in America are named after Presidents. Washington leads, being honored 29 times. Hayes is the least mentioned, only 2. Six towns are christened Hoover. Coolidge, six.

That the first newspaper in North America was Public Occurrences, born on Sept. 26, 1690. It was squelched after the first issue because it tweaked the noses of certain people who hollered Uncle.

That, according to a recent survey, one man out of ten, at 65, has enough money to assure him of an income of even $50 a month.

That a baby born now may expect to live two decades longer than if he had been born in 1870, but his papa today hasn't as good a chance of living to 60 as he had 10 years ago.

That the basic Red radio network, with outlets in 47 cities, costs $10,180 per hour, and the basic Blue network, with outlets in 58 cities, is $8,640. Not including talent cost.

That in China, men are usually bathed only twice in their lives—when they are born—and when they die. (Ugh!)

That close to one million taxi fares are collected in New York City every 24 hours. (Is that correct, Taxi Weekly?)

That Bobby Leach, human daze-devil who went over Niagara Falls in a steel barrel in 1911, died from injuries received when he slipped on a piece of orange peel in the street. (What? No bananas?)

That King John did not sign the Magna Charta. He merely affixed his seal. He couldn't even write his name (the umbay).

That Joseph Conrad, one of the grander authors, worshiped a tree in his garden so much, he bowed to it each a. m.

That in Cuba, marble is cheaper than wood, and is used for benches, walls, floors, etc., and so on and so forth.

That Edward Bok remarked at his 70th birthday: "I knew more when I was 17 than I do now at 70!" Me, too.

That Cardinal Richelieu, at times, imagined himself to be a horse, and neighed, trotted and jumped like one.

That the failure of the Irish potato crop in 1845 caused one million Irishmen to emigrate to America in a period of five years. (Which is how all these cops, politicians and sports writers got here.)

That Paul Revere was a swelegant music engraver, too, as testified to by the Public Library's music dept.

That the very first prep school in Massachusetts was, and still is, called "Dummer Academy." (Gosh! How far must I go, Ma?)

That it is possible to get a number on the dial phone without using the dial—or calling the operator.

That if you run over and kill a man in Switzerland, you have to support his tribe for the rest of your life.

And that if they bring back light wines and beers, they'll probably take the brewery horses off the racetracks.

Laurel's New Friend Blames Mothers for Actions Of Young Folk

Synopsis

Laurel Oakes, 19, thoroughly "modern," finds that she will be alone at dinner. She flirts with Roger Sartoris, 29, blase, jaded young man who is infatuated with her. Imogene Gay invites Laurel to a "moonlight party." Laurel drives her roadster out to a deserted farm house where she finds many of her friends intoxicated, having a gay time. The party becomes rowdy and Imogene hits Laurel with a glass. Laurel runs from the house. Finding her tires slashed, she runs down the road and is rescued by a stranger.

Now Go On

What of it?

"I'll call up the nearest garage and tell them to fetch it."

Right-o. They can take care of it till morning. I guess those tires can't be patched up. They were slashed through and through by some venomous beast.

She had removed the bandage from her forehead. She gazed into the little mirror now and saw that her skin, though pale, was exquisitely translucent.

What did the good-looking doctor think of her? Had she wiped away the remembrance of her hysterical outburst?

He was so attractive that she couldn't bear it if he really thought disparaging of her....

When he came back she said airily: "Pull some more ideas out of your hat, Big Boy! You interest me E-nor-mous-ly!"

Picture shows ingenious method used by Mister Friby to cover the vast territory in the Far East in search of facts. Mr. Friby propels himself through marriage by merely blowing into the ads.

Editor's Note—For seven days no word was received from our correspondent in Manchuria, Mister Friby. What could this agonizing silence mean? Only one of 2,342 things! Either the Sino-Japanese trouble had ended. Or Mister Friby, realizing that his alimony payments were due, had fled to the hills. But all these guesses—these fretful fears—proved wrong. Mister Friby has been done a great injustice. Today we received word from our correspondent explaining that he had just discovered that he has been absent-mindedly placing special corn plasters on his correspondence envelopes, and wearing the special delivery stamps on his bunions.

WHY PITTSBURGH IS GREAT
Has Water Rates Equal to Most, Gas Rates Lower Than Most, Electric Rates Among the Lowest

Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph

BE A PITTSBURGH BOOSTER
To Your Friends in Other Cities

He Cannot Hide Them!

With the record of inaction it has established at Washington the Grand Old Party will have a hard time of it convincing the Man in the Street that it is not what it appears to be.

Lack of efficient leadership has placed the Republicans in a sad predicament.

All the explanations it can offer cannot conceal the fact that it has straddled the Prohibition issue and made a sorry mess of an attempt to enforce this unenforceable law.

It cannot hide the fact that its "scuttle" policy has weakened the Navy and endangered the national security.

It cannot hide the fact that its bungling of the tariff legislation has caused otherwise friendly nations to adopt retaliatory tariffs hampering American commerce and destroying American trade.

It cannot hide the fact that the National Treasury is faced with a deficit estimated at $2,000,000,000, but it has done nothing to meet the issue.

Pass Prosperity and Obligations Around

By Claude G. Bowers

Those timid politicians preferring to camouflage the state of the Union by meeting the two billion dollar deficit by long term loans instead of increased taxes will hardly have their way. The habit of going into debt instead of meeting obligations as they come is partly responsible for the present plight of this country and the world.

When men must incur an obligation as it comes and find it hard they may be forced to the elimination of extravagance in living but when they pass the obligation on to a future day through long-time loans they are prone to continue their extravagance. One of the primary needs of the nation now is for the people to get their feet back upon the ground.

Nicholas Murray Butler in his advice to his party cites some startling figures from official sources on what indebtedness is meaning to America. If we include corporate, governmental and personal debt Americans owe $116,000,000,000, which amounts to almost one-third of the country's total estimated wealth.

He finds that the current and continuous indebtedness of the average American family for household and personal expenses is between $200 and $250.

If to this is added as it must be, long-term mortgage obligations, we must add $260 per capita.

We do not need any more debts; we must pay the past.

Who Will Be Responsible!

And whatever may be done toward spreading the tax burden to the masses the original administration plan of sparing the possessors of rich fortunes has been abandoned. The present plan to place a large part of the burden of meeting the deficit upon the income in the higher brackets is no longer partisan since the revolutionary views of Baccarach of New Jersey are spreading to the Republican camp. Nor is such a plan confined to radicals, radical having come to mean those who think more of the rights of men than the privileges of money. Dr.

Angus McLean of North Carolina is a business man in politics. He is a banker and manufacturer. Having served in the Treasury under Wilson and been Governor of his state, he is not infinitely with the theory of taxation. And he proposes that during the period of the depression half of excess individual income annually, a billion dollars and more, shall be taken in taxes to be divided between the state and nation.

Many will think that shocking but that is being done in England and unless another plan is found and adopted that is precisely what we shall have here.

There would be no need for any increase in taxation under the depressing conditions of these days had the administration adopted businesslike methods and not have run counter to economic laws. Whoever has to pay the taxes will know precisely where to place the responsibilities.

Why Merchants Are Going Into Bankruptcy

We are passing through a period calling for numerous adjustments and changes. There can be no patchwork business. That will abide. Things that fundamentally are wrong must be remedied. Just now, with from six to seven million breadwinners on the streets we are momentarily concerned with getting as many back to work as possible, at least part time and without reference to what under normal conditions would be thought adequate wages. But we cannot go on forever with vast numbers working part-time.

And machinery, substituting for man power, threatens that very condition. During the period of 1920-9 there was an increase of 1,000,000 of the unemployed because of machinery, and inventive genius is at work on new mechanical devices as substitutes for man power. Employers are prone to substitute machinery because it costs them less to produce, but that finally means the aggravating of the present trouble of overproduction due to under-consumption. You cannot throw men out of work without decreasing the purchasing power of the nation. That is the reason merchants are going into bankruptcy today.

The Solution for the Problem of Machinery

And yet it were absurd and stupid to consider the machines of the machinery that would be outlawing progress. That was attempted in England when it was first put in the mills and Charlotte Bronte in her novel Shirley graphically describes the mood of the workers at the time when they sallied forth at night to wreck the hated machines. That fear passed because the men who lost jobs because of the machines found jobs making the machinery, but that no longer holds.

What, then, is to be done now. It seems simple enough. We have been giving the employer all the advantage from invention making it cheaper for him to produce and increasing his profits, while throwing the employee no longer needed on the streets. We have come to the end of that rope. We must now give the worker some of the advantage of invention and there is but one way to do it—and that is to give him a five-day week or a six-hour day. That means less drudgery and more time for pleasure or self-improvement. That is the only solution for the problem of machinery.

Conditions Define Duties

And this is something the industrial leaders can do themselves if they will and have the vision for it ultimately works to their own advantage and profit. Neither the manufacturer, the merchant nor the banker gains by destroying or reducing the purchasing power of the millions.

Fewer work days or fewer work hours, some form of unemployment insurance, old age pensions these must come whether we wish it or not. Conditions define duties. It is no longer possible to think in terms of yesterday.

Stupid to Indict Dreiser Committee

The indictment of Theodore Dreiser and his nine associates on the committee that made an investigation into the hidden conditions in Harlan County, Kentucky, on the charge of criminal syndicalism is worse than stupid. The charge is not the reason for the indictment of these writers, scenes authors and photographers. There were riots in the mine region urging violence, but the Dreiser committee was not responsible for them. They, however, were not indicted. They were not so dangerous. The Dreiser committee is dangerous because it proposes to publish the result of its observations and this is dangerous.

The average American, rich or poor, believes in elemental justice, and if he seems indifferent to patent wrongs it is because he does not know about them. It was stupid to indict this committee because it arouses national curiosity as to conditions in Harlan County and will enormously increase the sale of the book. That is one of the books we want to read.

Fair Utility Rates

Opinion of Association of Western Pennsylvania Commerce Shows It Is Accepted.

Give 20 More Gifts

The Sun-Telegraph suggestion in this column Saturday that lower utility prices were an inducement to make Christmas gifts generous

John L. Rogers, of 46 Rich street, calls attention to a plan that is similar in this connection. He learned of it through a radio talk by Kathleen Norris, the novelist.

"Mrs. Norris suggested, as a means of alleviating distress this Christmas, and at the same time of speeding up business recovery, that each of her hearers resolve to give 20 (I believe) more gifts this year than in 1930, preferably of home manufacture, no matter how inexpensive or how simple, and to friends or acquaintances whose circumstances would preclude any return gifts."

To put the plan into effect it is necessary, of course, that Pittsburghers should know what locally manufactured articles are suitable for Christmas gifts.

It is up to the manufacturers and shopkeepers to let us know.

Generous Physicians

The Free Services Rendered By Allegheny County's Doctors Constitute a Great Philanthropy.

So much has been heard in late years about the high cost of medical attention that it is important and gratifying to learn something about the other side of the question.

The information is furnished in the preliminary and partial report of a committee of the Allegheny County Medical Society, which has been inquiring concerning the amount of free medical service rendered in the hospitals of the county.

Returns have been received from 21 of the 28 hospitals interrogated. They state that during their last fiscal year there were 468,338 free patient days in the hospitals and 249,149 visits to the out-patient departments, making a total of 733,487 contacts of a charitable nature between physicians and patients. The complete totals for the 28 institutions are expected to approximate 1,000,000.

An immense amount of free medical service is furnished in addition, by physicians working independently of the hospitals.

It is said that if the commercial value of this free service were to be reckoned it would constitute a philanthropy so huge that the gifts of some of our well known welfare associations, in comparison, would pale into insignificance.

The doctors probably are going to have to increase their free service this winter. The public as well as the direct recipients of their charity owes them a debt of gratitude. Theirs is a philanthropy which attracts little attention, and which on that very account merits more appreciation than it receives.

A Plan for Farmers

Pennsylvanians Are Given Something to Think About in Minnesota's Capture of Our Butter Markets.

The Legislature last winter created the Greater Pennsylvania Council and granted it broad powers to advance the welfare of the state.

We commend to the attention of Dr. Charles Reitell, director of the Council, as worthy of his study, the Minnesota Plan for the improvement of agriculture. The plan has increased farm income in four northwestern states by $700,000,000 in eight years, an average of $1,679 per farm, according to Frederick E. Murphy, publisher of the Minneapolis Tribune and sponsor of the scheme.

Under the Minnesota Plan farmers were induced to diversify their crops, to substitute pure-bred livestock for scrub animals, and to produce their own food supplies. The most successful farms in every region have been studied and their methods applied to the less successful. The banks were persuaded to finance the improvements.

Mr. Murphy is trying to extend the plan to other states as a means of promoting national prosperity.

Pennsylvania is given some impressive reasons for being interested. Mr. Murphy tells us, for instance, that Minnesota farmers sold in Philadelphia last year 84 pounds of butter for every pound sold by Pennsylvania farmers. Sales of Pennsylvania butter have dropped remarkably and sales of Minnesota butter increased since the Minnesota Plan went into effect.

The Pure Food Campaign

There is one campaign which never ends in Pennsylvania—the campaign for pure foods.

We are reminded of it by a routine report of the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture which mentions, among other things, that 12 Pittsburgh vinegar merchants were fined a total of $600 last month for offering as "pure cider vinegar" an adulterated product.

There were many other prosecutions under the state pure food laws in October—prosecutions of ice cream "bootleggers" in Philadelphia who falsely asserted that the inferior article that they handled was the advertised product of well known manufacturers, prosecutions of butter and egg men whose butter was watered and whose eggs were not as fresh as they said they were.

It is comforting to know that the pure food authorities are seldom or never found napping.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, Nov. 23.—Days of routine conversation to monosyllabic Popeye Bellmes to Rosalind Russ. . . . It has the ghoulish monotones of the Death Watch. . . .

In the nocturnal haunts suffering the economic eclipse one feature is noticeable. Provocative maids no longer try to sell customers those gangly-legged Arabian dolls and other souvenirs of a night out. Wine-flushed gentlemen used to respond generously to such sales advances. But not any more. . . .

I was interested in fragments of a conversation drifting from a nearby table. A depressed gentleman was moaning his threnody about a collapsing world. What is needed, he said, is to abolish the whole business, get a new Adam and Eve a garden and start from scratch. . . .

And in the cloakroom on the way out one of those pert check girls was philosophizing. "If it isn't one thing it's something else," she sighed. "Two days ago I had to snatch a razor from a mooning guy who decided to take up throat slitting in a big way. And before coming to work today I talked a neighbor woman out of pounding up lamp chimneys for a deep dish pie. Yet for eight years I've been standing the gaff in dumps like this to play hookey from a poor farm. And the old grin is still goofey, but untarnished. . . .

On yes, I wonder if others in their gaudy pilgrimages notice the amazing certainty of tango dancers on the postage stamp floors. No person in the world has the grim sureness of the tangoist. And I'm the mean-tempered snippet who would enjoy hissing them. . . .

It strikes me the real joy of dallying overtime along the primrose path is to see Broadway momentarily anew in the pink of dawn. In a few hours its gloss is dimmed by the mucky flow of tawdriness. But at sunup with clean winds from the harbor blowing through its canyons the trap that most of us give it might easily be turned into a rhapsody. There is about it the tassle of mystery and glamour of pathos and for no reason at all something tuppingly alluring. . . .

One of the Broadway comiques declares it is not for him to tell Einstein to get a hair cut but he does think he should get an estimate. . . .

From Mrs. J., Atlanta: Many of us who have read you for years are delighted that at last you are enjoying housekeeping after years in hotels. I hope I'm not first to express this sentiment.

No indeedy! For years even my best friends have thought I should be put in some sort of a home.

Marry-Go-Round

By HELEN ROWLAND

Your Money—Or Your Love!

Men have lost their glamorous charm in the eyes of women, declares a famous French critic.

The modern woman is finding the modern man dull and uninspiring. That is why she is looking more and more dubiously at marriage.

* * *

* * *

If a woman had made such a statement it would sound like nothing but a new gambit in a very weak attack on the all-conquering male.

But there is a lot more to it than that. Economic independence and modern freedom have made women more fastidious and choicy in the matter of masculine companionship. To a girl with a perfectly good job and plenty of spending money, marriage looks less like a dire necessity than like a big gamble. And a husband may be more of a liability than an asset.

* * *

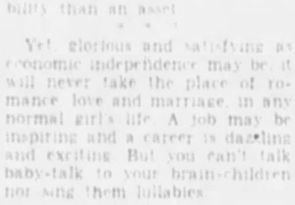
Yet, glorious and satisfying as economic independence may be, it will never take the place of romance, love and marriage, in any normal girl's life. A job may be inspiring and a career is dazzling and exciting. But you can't talk baby-talk to your brain-children nor sing them lullabies.

* * *

And there is a thrill about listening for the key in the latch at dinner-time that exceeds any thrill you ever got out of carrying a latch-key of your own. Or even out of your own pay-envelope.

* * *

Alas, no. If women are looking a little dubiously at marriage and a little speculatively at men, it is not merely a gesture. If men have lost their glamorous charm in the eyes of women, it is because, in the last few years of stress and whoopee, they have almost forgotten how to talk to women or how to be companionable.



After concentrating his whole mind on the pursuit of the almighty dollar for eight or ten hours a day, about all that a man can think of to entertain a woman in the evening is to offer her a kiss, a drink, a dinner or a diamond bracelet.

* * *

By the time night comes, the tired business man's imagination has "gone dead," his mind is a total blank, and even his heart has slowed down to low gear. There isn't a sparkle left anywhere in his weary brain, and his conversation sounds like one long yawn.

* * *

He can dance, pet and play bridge in a mechanical sort of fashion, but you sort of get the impression that he "keeps going" just in order to prove that he's still conscious.

* * *

LISTEN, WORLD

By Elsie Robinson

I started active life as one of those peace-at-any-price persons. Anything to avoid a row and keep people happy.

Keeping people happy—that seemed a slight order. Surely if I were consistently polite and pleasant, did nothing to annoy and stayed out of brawls, that should keep people happy. But this, it soon appeared, was not enough.

People weren't satisfied with this amiable but negative sort of behavior. They wanted me to do things. Definite and often disagreeable and difficult things. They demanded that I Take Sides. And if I didn't take sides, they got mad at me.

So, still adhering to my "peace at any price"—I did the things they wanted. Took sides.

It's all right," I said to myself as I did so. "This is just a temporary concession. I'll let them think I'm interested—to keep things pleasant. Then they'll stop nagging at me and let me alone, and I'll be able to do as I please."

And I really believed what I said. I honestly thought I could keep my life pleasant and placid by such tactics. Of course, it involved a certain amount of fibbing and pretending. Indeed, to be quite exact, it required constant fibbing and fussing. For somebody was always being hurt or offended. Somebody was always making demands. And I was so sorry for them. And so afraid—

Fear—that was really behind it all, of course. I was really afraid of people, though I wouldn't come right out and acknowledge that shameful fact to myself. I was afraid of people's anger. I would do anything rather than have that anger turned against me. It wasn't good nature, nor pity for people, nor affection for them, nor even love of peace, that made me give in to their demands. It was fear.

But it took me a long time to realize this.

I didn't realize it until I found that, in spite of all my lies and cowardly concessions, I was in hot water all the time. I COULDN'T FIND PEACE AT ANY PRICE. The more I gave in and took sides the more I had to give in and take sides. Presently my whole time was spent in doing what various people wanted me to do. I no longer lived my own life; no longer had my own opinions. I was everybody's football.

AND EVEN THEN PEOPLE WEREN'T SATISFIED!

For if I agreed with one person another person despised me. And it was manifestly impossible for me to take sides with everybody—

AS A CONSEQUENCE I WAS CONTINUALLY IN HOT WATER IN TRYING TO AVOID TROUBLE. I HAD MULTIPLIED IT A THOUSAND FOLD! I HAD MADE ENEMIES OF ALL THE PEOPLE WHOM I HAD DECEIVED. MOST OF ALL I HAD MADE AN ENEMY OF MYSELF.

I was like a business man who goes into the red a little every week, but refuses to face the fact and so goes on and on until finally there comes the big smash. I had been going into the red, year after year—sacrificing my honor, my self-respect, my dignity, my right to privacy . . . . in short, surrendering my every essential right as a human being IN ORDER TO HAVE PEACE AT ANY PRICE. And now I was completely in the hole—

And so I started to tell the truth and to live the truth. I decided that if telling the truth meant a row, I'D HAVE MY ROW IMMEDIATELY AND GET IT DONE WITH, INSTEAD OF WAITING UNTIL IT ACCUMULATED MALICIOUS COMPOUND INTEREST.

So I did. And it works. I have peace now. But I do not have it "at any price." I pay indeed a very large price for my peace. I no longer am as popular as I was. I have lost many who claimed to be my friends. They say hard things of me. They say I've grown stuck-up . . . mean . . . cold. And this would have hurt terribly once. It still hurts—some. But the peace I have is worth it all. For I'm at peace with myself. AND THAT IS THE ONLY PEACE THAT COUNTS.

ONCE OVERS

By J. J. Mundy

One minute may be the life or death of the biggest thing in the life of someone.

That one minute might as easily as not spell defeat for you in your most hazardous moment.

You can't tell when that moment may come, neither do you know how nor at the moment of your "wait a minute" just what certain things make for or against your success.

Because you are not expecting the crucial point of time is not proof that life is not holding important moments many and often for you.

There are some who call it opportunity.

If you acquire the habit of mind which says "wait a minute" you will lose many opportunities.

In fact it would not be safe for any important undertaking to depend on you for success because you are not the right kind of a minute man.
